ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

FLEMING—Fleming and Leahy families wish to convey most sincere thanks to the clergy who said Masses, to those who sent Mass cards, to the Schoolchildren, Public Bodies, and Organisations, and to all who extended sympathy on the death of Mary, beloved wife of Thomas Fleming, Shillelagh.

GOGGIN—Mr. W. P. Goggin and family, 3 Auburn street, Dublin, wish to return their very sincere thanks to the many kind friends who sympathised with them in their recent sad bereavement, and trust that they will accept this notice in acknowledgment, as, owing to the very numerous expressions of sympathy received, it would be impossible to reply individually.

IN MEMORIAM.

CHAPMAN—Thirteenth Anniversary—In loving memory of Thomas Chapman, of Garden Vale, Athlone, who died on the 14th April, 1922.

KELLY—In ever-loving memory of mother, Mrs. Mary H. Kelly, who fell asleep on 13th April, 1929, at her residence, Glenmalure Cottage, South Circular road, Rialto Bridge.

SALARY OF A REGISTRAR

EX-M.P.'S APPEAL DISMISSED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON, MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN AND MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

Reserved judgment was delivered dismissing by a majority the appeal of Mr. John Muldoon, K.C., ex-M.P., Connaught Place, Clonskeagh, Dublin, from a judgment of the High Court dismissing his action against the Minister for Justice and the Minister for Finance for a declaration that he was entitled to be paid a salary of £1,200 a year for his appointment as Registrar to the Chief Justice.

Mr. Muldoon claimed that he was appointed to the office of Registrar in Lunacy on the 22nd October, 1921, his predecessor's salary being £1,000 a year, rising by annual increments to £1,200. The position of Registrar in Lunacy subsequently became merged in that of Registrar to the Chief Justice, a position to which he was appointed.

The appointment to the Registrarship in Lunacy was made by writing under the hand of Lord Chief Justice Molony, and in making it he stated that the salary attached to the office was to be £1,000 a year, together with emoluments, and the net point for decision by the Supreme Court was whether that note in writing was operative to vary in any way the previously existing general order of the Lord Chancellor fixing the salary at £1,000, rising by increments to £1,200.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon, announcing the majority decision of the Court dismissing the appeal, said that he was satisfied that the Lord Chief Justice had jurisdiction to vary the general order. Mr. Muldoon had accepted the salary of £1,000 for five years, and when he was appointed by the Chief Justice he made no demur at the salary of £1,000 a year paid to him, and everyone thought that this was the salary to which he was entitled.

Mr. Justice Hanna concurred.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan, in his dissenting judgment, was of opinion that, while the appellant was not entitled to have an account taken regarding his previous years' salaries, he was entitled to a declaration that his salary was at the rate of £1,200 a year.

The appeal was accordingly dismissed with costs.

Mr. Costello, K.C., Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., and Mr. George R. O'Connor (instructed by Mr. J. M. McDowell) appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C., and Mr. M. J. O'Brien (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the respondents.

LAND COMMISSION APPEALS

A BARN AS A BILLIARD ROOM

Before Commissioners Judge Wylie (Chairman), Mr. D. Brown and Mr. E. A. Mansfield, sitting as the Land Commission Appeals Tribunal, the Trustees of the General Presbyterian Fund appealed from an order of the Land Commission admitting a holding at Orchardstown, Rathfarnham, Co. Dublin, to purchase under the Land Act of 1923.

Mr. Phelps, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. O'Keefe and Lynch), appearing for the tenant (Mrs. Robina Rodgers), said that when the application to have the holding brought in under the Act came before his lordship in 1930 it was opposed by the landlords, on the ground that it was a potential building ground. An order was made dismissing the application because the holding had substantial value as building ground.

As the landlords had done nothing for a considerable time to develop the holding for building purposes, the tenant again applied for the benefit of the Land Act, and the argument now put forward by the landlords was that the holding was a residential one. This, said Mr. Phelps, was an argument which one would have thought would have been brought forward before the Court in 1930 if it had any basis. Mrs. Rodgers, the tenant, used the holding as a dairy farm, although out of its 39 acres a house and six acres were sub-let to Mr. Newell at a rent of £120 a year.

Judge Wylie—It is very much against you that you had sub-let portion of the holding.

Mr. Phelps, continuing, said that the fact that the six acres were sub-let hardly could make the whole holding residential one.

Mr. McElligott, valuer, questioned in his evidence about a billiard room on the premises sub-let, said that there was a barn which had been floored apparently for use as a billiard room. There never had been, however, a billiard table there.

Mr. Cherry (instructed by Mr. Margotson), appearing for the sub-tenant, said that his client was willing to be excluded.

The Tribunal affirmed the decision of the Land Commission, with the addendum that the Land Commission should avail themselves of the powers which they possessed under the Land Act and exclude the sub-tenant now in occupation from the benefit of the Act.

Costs were granted against the landlords.

Mr. M. Pringle (instructed by Messrs. Hunter and Burland) appeared for the Trustees of the General Presbyterian Fund.

Judge Wylie, in reference to the reserved judgment in the appeal of the Marquess of Lansdowne, affecting judicial tenancies being brought in under the Land Acts, said that he had not yet read the Supreme Court judgment in the Longford case. He would, therefore, withhold for the present judgment in the Lansdowne case to see if anything in it conflicted with the Supreme Court judgment. It was only right that this course should be adopted, if only out of courtesy to the Court.

CALLS TO INNER BAR

Messrs. William B. Black, Martin J. Connolly, T. C. Kingsmill Moore, Thomas Paul McCarthy, Ralph Brereton Barry and Patrick Joseph Roe were called to the Inner Bar by the Chief Justice in the Supreme Court, Dublin, yesterday.

FIRM AUSTRALIAN WOOL MARKET

The publication yesterday of the average prices obtained during the last week of the series of wool sales at Sydney, which concluded on Thursday, affords a tangible proof of the continued firmness of the Australian market. This week's averages were £13 6s. 4d. a bale and 10.8d. a pound. Last weeks average quotation per bale was £13 6s.

INSTRUCTION OF GIRLS

DEMAND FOR IRISH SPEAKERS

DONEGAL INSTITUTE TO BE FOUNDED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

MR. E. J. KELLY, K.C., with whom was Mr. G Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. A. O'Hagan and Son), applied on behalf of the Most Rev. Dr. MacNeely, Bishop of Raphoe; the Very Rev. Mi. Canon Forker, P.P., Glenties, and Manus McDevitt, Glenties, trustees under the will and codicils of Charles McDevitt, late of Stranakivlin House, Glenties, for approval of a scheme, to be known as the McDevitt scheme, for the promotion of the instruction in domestic science of girls of the parishes of Cloghaneely and Gweedore.

Counsel said that the scheme was one of the many which had been settled by the Court in connection with charitable dispositions concerning the residue of the estate of Chas. McDevitt, who died on 15th April, 1914, leaving a very large estate, the whole of the residue of which fell to charities. The residue at present in court consisted of £5,000, deposited to meet the trusts of a deed for securing a life annuity. The rest of the charitable fund was in the hands of the trustees, and amounted to about £10,300. The testator directed that the residue be applied for industrial and technical purposes for the public benefit in the towns and country districts of the Diocese of Raphoe, in the discretion of the executors, "one institute at least to be called by the name of Mr. Hugh McDevitt." Seven schemes had already been settled, including one for the establishment of the Hugh McDevitt Institute, which had been extremely successful.

£6,000 SCHEME

The Most Rev. Dr MacNeely, counsel said, had taken a very keen interest in the administration of this trust and in seeing that every penny was expended to the best advantage. In an affidavit, the Bishop suggested that about £6,000 be applied towards providing a scheme for the training of girls in the parishes of Cloghaneely and Gweedore in subjects that would fit them for domestic service. These parishes were the most densely populated in the diocese, and the inhabitants were mainly Irish speakers. He was aware that a large number of girls from these parishes sought employment as domestic servants in various parts of Ireland and elsewhere, and he thought that the scheme would meet a great need.

Counsel said that there was a great demand elsewhere in the Free State for maids who were native Irish speakers and who would enable children to be brought up in an atmosphere as near as possible to that of an Irish-speaking district. A scheme with the object of training these girls in their homes before they went elsewhere would be of great benefit to the district and to those who would engage the girls; but the idea of benefiting the girls was the underlying one.

JUDGE APPROVES

Mr. Justice Meredith said that he thought that the scheme was very fitting and useful. He remarked that about twenty years ago, when girls from Irish speaking districts came to work in Dublin, a number seemed almost ashamed of their native language, but matters had improved a lot in that respect. If girls from these districts were properly trained, they would be very willingly engaged by people with children who had been taught Irish. He was enthusiastically in favour of the idea underlying the scheme.

Mr. Kelly said that it was probable that the girls who came to the city years ago were not ashamed of the native language, but were determined to learn English as quickly as possible, believing it to be to their advantage in earning their living. Dealing with the scheme, he said that there would be an income of £270 per year for its purposes. Dr. MacNeely wanted only enough money to pay the instructress and provide the necessary requirements. The general object was to provide training for necessitous students who were natives of the parishes mentioned or had been resident there for three years before their application. The payment of fees was to be a matter in the discretion of the trustees.

Mr. Justice Meredith approved the scheme, with minor amendments, and expressed the hope that it would be as successful as the other schemes established under these trusts. He allowed the parties their costs out of the residue.

Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor) appeared for the Attorney-General.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

JAIL FOR WINDOW BREAKING

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

A young woman named Kathleen Dunne, 104 Capel street, was charged in custody by Guard John Lee with breaking a window in the shop, 132 Thomas street. It appeared that the woman broke the window with her shoe. Later a port wine bottle was found inside the shop. The amount of the damage was estimated at £9 7s. 3d.

Mr. Hannan said that she had been convicted on a previous occasion for window-breaking, and would now be sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Thomas Fox, 3 St. Eithne road, and his son Thomas were charged with assaulting Mrs. Sarah Fox, wife of the senior prisoner, at their home.

Evidence showed that Mrs. Fox came home from a public-house smelling of drink and attempted to assault her husband.

Mr. Hannan dismissed the charges, and bound Mrs. Fox to the peace for twelve months. He said she would be sent to jail if she could not find two independent sureties of £5 each, as well as her own bail of £10.

ALLEGED LARCENY OF RAGS

A further remand was granted until Tuesday next in the case of Patrick Byrne (21), Cathedral lane; Patrick O'Hara (18), no fixed address; and Edward Dargan (17), of Hackett's court, who had been charged with breaking and entering the rag stores belonging to Nathan Rattal, in Upper Kevin street, and stealing therefrom a quantity of tailors' clippings and curled horsehair, value £15. They were also charged with illegal possession.

Christopher Merry (14), of Hackett's court, and Joseph Byrne (13), Cathedral lane, were similarly charged.

Peter Green (65), of 17 Martin

PLANNING FOR THE SUMMER

VACATIONS ON LAND AND SEA

Speaking of holidays—and nearly everyone is speaking of them at this time of the year—have you noticed the vast quantity of tourist literature which the presses turn out every season? A few years ago this literature was confined to what is technically known as the "stuffer," mere leaflets to "boost" some resort or other. Now things are different. Well-produced booklets, illustrated with enticing pictures, make the contemplation of "where to go for the holidays" a delightful occupation.

The prospective holiday-maker gathers round him a pile of these booklets, sits comfortably in front of the fire, and plans the annual holiday or the few days he is going to spend away from the city during Easter. Of course, these fireside plans rarely work out to schedule—the actual holidays are much more fun, even if somebody did say "it is better to travel hopefully than to arrive."

But, to get back to the point. The prospective holiday-maker is almost bewildered by this tourist literature, but experience, the advice of friends "who have been there," or the more entertaining idea of "seeing somewhere new" are the best guides in the long run; although, of course, these booklets and leaflets are a useful aid.

IRISH RESORTS

"See Ireland First" has been a slogan—in fact, more than a slogan—for several years past, and each year the number of visitors to Irish holiday resorts has been steadily growing. For young people these cheerfully full resorts are a delight, but, fortunately for those of us who like a quiet time, there are still a number of "peaceful" places left. For instance, if you are a fisherman, you can go across to Galway and fish in the Corrib or any of the many other good rivers to be found in Ireland. Incidentally, the Irish Tourist Association can tell anglers all about where the best fishing is to be found, in addition to lots of other useful information about holidays—quiet or gay—in the Free State. This organisation has offices in Dublin, Cork and London, and, besides doing a great deal to improve the standard of Irish hotels during the past few years, can tell you things about holidays, ranging from the importing or exporting of your car over the border to the charges of a hotel in any part of the country, or the rainfall at any particular place you may be thinking of visiting.

By a sort of levelling-up process to replace the people who come up from Cork to Dublin, lots of holiday-makers go down South each year. From Wexford across to Kerry one can find a wide variety of scenery and an equally wide variety of resorts. Rosslare and Tramore are two of the resorts which have grown in popularity, and are quite easy to reach from Dublin. Some of the hotels down this way have arranged special attractions for Easter week; there will be point-to-point meetings and golf competitions for the out-of-door folk, while dancing, film entertainments and bridge will be provided for those who stay indoors. In fact, all holiday places in the South are well served by the Great Southern Railways, who have also arranged an increased number of Eastertide excursions this year to all the best-known of the Southern beauty spots. Another development of this company is the planning of tours by road and rail, and these range from a day trip through County Wicklow—another good place to spend a holiday—to a tour around the whole of Ireland, which takes about ten days. This season's itineraries have been arranged to include more places of historic and scenic interest than those of previous years.

WELL-KNOWN SPAS

There was a time when the mention of a spa sent one's mind off to the Continent, but to-day there are two spas in Ireland which at least equal, if not excel, those of the Continent. One of these is the Lucan Hotel and Hydro, and the other down south at Lisdoonvarna; both offer every amenity that the visitor, whether seeking new health or just a holiday, can want.

Turning northwards and travelling to Ulster by the main line of the Great Northern Railway one finds such entertaining places as Bundoran over on the Atlantic coast or, nearer Belfast, Portstewart and Ballycastle (of the wind-swept cliffs) in North Antrim, and Newcastle and Bangor—one of the most progressive resorts in the country—in County Down. The Ulster Tourist Development Association performs for Northern Ireland the same functions as the I.T.A. does for the Free State, and can supply a great deal of useful information about the Ulster resorts to anyone who calls or just writes to its office in Belfast. Quite a number of Easter excursions to the North have been arranged by the railway company.

If, however, your fancy lies eastwards, in Great Britain you have quite a good selection of routes. If Scotland is your goal then the Burns and Laird Lines will take you from Dublin to Glasgow direct, without any fussing about trains. For the North of England, Liverpool is your port, and the British and Irish Steampacket Company's ships, sailing from Dublin each week night, land you in that city in time for breakfast next morning, without the loss of any sleep. North Wales, and particularly "the other Bangor," attracts many Irish visitors, and people going there or to anywhere in the Midlands or South of England finds the Royal Mail Steamers operated between Dun Laoghaire and Holyhead by the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, a convenient and speedy means of travel. Mention of Dun Laoghaire reminds one of the numerous seaside resorts near Dublin that might almost be described as suburban, as they are so easily reached. Places like Greystones, Wicklow, Bray, Dun Laoghaire, or Howth, Malahide and Skerries, seem to be "just right" for the Easter week-end.

CRUISING HOLIDAYS

Cruising is another good way to spend a holiday, and one pleasant thing about this form of vacation is that you are touring, seeing new places and faces, but you have not the trouble of packing and unpacking your bags at a fresh hotel every night. You unpack once when you go on board, and, no matter how many different places you visit, there is no more playing around with trunks and bags until your holiday is over. Cruises now start not only from the big English seaports, but also from Dublin and Belfast. The Cunard-White Star liner Lancastria is no stranger to Dublin, and she will be sailing out of the port again in July for Spain, Portugal, Morocco, and Madeira on a cruise on which the company is co-operating with the Catholic Truth Society of Ireland. From Belfast the Anchor Line boats are going to such entertaining places as Barcelona, Palma, Athens, and Tangier this year. The P. and O. Line steamship Strathnaver will also be sailing from Belfast in July to Bergen, Stockholm, and other Northern ports. The North German Lloyd Line is offering a cruise on the 33,000 steamship Columbus next month, calls being made at both Cobh and Galway. This Line's agents, the Limerick Steamship Company, is also arranging holidays in the United States and in Germany, travel being made on the North German Lloyd boats. Tours to Canada and the United States are also being arranged by the Canadian Pacific Company, which operates the shortest route to the American Continent, and a trip which includes a visit to Niagara Falls, New York, and several Canadian cities takes only 24 days.

The Hamburg-American line has planned several excursion parties to the United States, and sailings will be made from Cobh and Galway. A Catholic cruise to the Mediterranean and a pilgrimage to Lourdes are being arranged on the steamships Tuscania and Athenia, both starting from Dublin.

In the Bibby Line programme is a short Continental cruise, lasting only seven days, as well as some longer ones, to the Mediterranean. The Lamport and Holt boats Voltaire and Vandyck are also doing cruises in the Mediterranean this year, and so are boats of the Nederland Line. The Fyffes Line goes farther afield to the West Indies, and for any one who has the time to spare the Union Castle Company offers a holiday in South Africa.

BOOKING A TOUR

Now, having decided where to go for your holiday, the matter of booking has to be arranged. By far the easiest way to do this is through travel agents—Thomas Cook and Son, American Express, Messrs. Hewett's, and Messrs. D. J. Twohig—who have offices in Dublin. And, of course, one of the safest means of carrying your money while away on holiday out of the country is by means of travellers' cheques obtainable from tourist agencies. It costs nothing extra to do your booking through these agents; in fact, they are often able to help holiday-makers to save money—particularly on tours—and all the fuss and bother of the arrangements is left to them while you sit back in pleasurable anticipation of the holiday to come. Well, have a good time!

FIERCE ATTACK ON TRIBUNAL

KERRY PRISONERS SENTENCED

STRUGGLES IN THE DOCK

A GROUP of Kerry republicans charged with refusing to give an account of their movements on the night of March 10-11th last, when interrogated by the Civic Guards, were tried by the Military Tribunal at Collins Barracks, Dublin.

The accused were:—John McElligott, Glenalena, Kilflynn; Michael and Thomas O'Brien, Glounafineela, Kilflynn; Eugene Whitson and John Healy, Fohavane, Kilflynn, and Edward Fuller, Knocknacasha.

The men were brought into the court and tried one by one, the first case being that against John McElligott. He refused to answer his name when called, as he did not plead to the charge, the President ordered a "not guilty" plea to be entered.

Superintendent Philip Chambers testified that with the exception of stating that he was a member of the I.R.A., McElligott refused to answer questions. The interrogation arose out of a raid by masked and armed men on the homes of James Lyons and Daniel Sullivan, when Volunteer uniforms were taken from each house.

Prisoner, when asked by the President if he had any statement to make said:—

"As a soldier and citizen of the Irish Republic, I refuse to recognise this British institution. Likewise do I deny the right to be tried by this Court of subordinate officers——"

The President—That will do.

SILENCED

McElligott continued to address the Tribunal, but was grasped by the military police, who put their hands over his mouth and stifled his voice.

He was found guilty of the charge, and also of contempt of Court, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Michael O'Brien was next put in the dock, and Superintendent Chambers said that the prisoner refused to answer any questions.

The prisoner, who said that as a soldier of the I.R.A. he refused to recognise "this British Tribunal," was convicted of the charge, and of contempt of Court, and sent to prison for six months.

Thomas O'Brien's case was then taken. Asked to plead, the prisoner replied:—"As a soldier of the Republican Army, I refuse to recognise this enemy Court."

O'Brien was declared guilty of the charge, and of contempt of Court. Sentence of six months' imprisonment was imposed.

The next prisoner, Eugene Whitson, refused "as a soldier of the I.R.A." to recognise the Court, and was given a similar sentence.

As sentence was being passed, he said:—"I refuse to be tried by a Tribunal whose hands are steeped in blood. You are a pack of murderers——"

A military policeman's hand over his mouth stopped further remarks.

Edward Fuller who described the Court as:—"this British Fianna Fail murderers' Tribunal," was also found guilty of the charge, and of contempt of Court. He was sent to prison for six months.

John Healy, the last of the party, was brought into the court, and he too refused to recognise the Tribunal. Found guilty of the charge, and also of contempt of Court, the same sentence was imposed on him.

DANCE HALL FIRE

A SENTENCE OF TWO YEARS

The burning of a dance hall at Lixnaw, County Kerry, was described to the Military Tribunal during the trial of James Flaherty, of Gralta, Lixnaw.

Flaherty was charged with membership of an unlawful association, which promoted and encouraged the setting fire to the hall; arson, by maliciously setting fire to the hall, the property of John McElligott; intent to injure or defraud; and refusing to give an account of his movements and actions on the night of March 10th-11th last, when interrogated by the Civic Guards.

He declined to answer his name or plead to the charges, commenting: "As a soldier of the Irish Republican Army, I have nothing but contempt for you."

State Counsel, Mr. M. J. O'Brien (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor), said that a Guard on patrol duty on the night of the fire heard voices and flashed his lamp in the direction from which they came. As he did so an order "Shoot" was given, and two bullets struck the ground near the Guard.

"SHOOT!"

Guard J. Connolly told the Court that when he was near the railway line at Lixnaw on the night of the fire he heard someone say, "Cut away," and immediately the telegraph wires were cut. Then he saw the dance hall on fire, and as he went in that direction someone said "shoot," and a rifle shot rang out and a bullet struck the ground close to him. Then another shot was fired.

Flaherty—Are you aware that your colleagues said they would floor me by fair means or foul?

Witness—I am not.

Plaster casts of footprints found near the scene were proved by Sergeant William Brett, who detailed similarities between the casts and shoes belonging to the prisoner.

Replying to questions by the prisoner, Sergeant Brett denied that the casts had been taken from the shoes "after the shoes had been stolen by the Guards."

The sergeant added that traces of paraffin and straw had been found in the hall, which had been set on fire in five or six different places.

According to evidence given by the owner of the dance hall, John McElligott, the damage caused was about £50.

Superintendent Chambers testified that the prisoner refused to answer all questions.

When asked if he wished to give evidence or make a statement, the prisoner replied:

"Some time ago a policeman in Listowel told me that he would get me sent to Arbour Hill or the Curragh by fair means or foul. This case is obviously the outcome of that threat. There is not a shred of evidence to convict me of burning the hall, and I am convinced that the footprints were faked. Even if they were not, there is no reason in the world why I would not be in the vicinity of the hall, since I am often there at meetings and other functions.

ANOTHER SCENE

"If this Court was one that I would recognise, I would bring people here to prove I was not near the hall at the time, but I would rather suffer any sentence in your torture chambers than recognise this British Fianna Fail Court. The I.R.A. will succeed in throttling Fianna Fail."

The President told the prisoner to stop talking, but as he continued, the military policemen seized him and stifled his remarks with their hands. He continued to struggle in the dock with his escort, but he was overpowered and seated in a chair.

The Tribunal found Flaherty guilty on all counts and also of contempt of court. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

As sentence was announced, Flaherty shouted: "Long live the Republic," and continued to shout: "Renegades," "Cut throats," and "Bloodhounds."

WARBLES ON CATTLE

DEPARTMENT'S ADVICE TO OWNERS

The time of the year has now arrived when warbles are making their appearance on the backs of cattle. These warbles are the grubs or maggots of the warble fly or gad fly. The adult warble flies are developed during the summer months. They fly around actively and alight on cattle in order to lay their eggs on them. Animals become very excited and nervous when they hear warble flies buzzing around, and they gallop violently (gad) in an effort to avoid the flies. Very often the flies succeed in laying their eggs on animals generally on the legs and lower parts of the body. In a short time very small maggots hatch from these eggs and they immediately bore in through the skin. These maggots live and grow within the body of the animal for a number of months and finally come to the back from about the month of March onwards.

The amount of loss which is incurred annually in this country because of the presence of warble flies is very great. The extensive damage caused to hides by the warble grubs constitutes a very large proportion of this loss, but great loss also results on account of animals "gadding" from the adult flies. This renders animals liable to hurt themselves, it causes a reduction in the milk yield of cows, and it prevents all animals from thriving normally.

It is most desirable that a determined effort should be made by farmers to exterminate the warble fly. Recent research has shown that by applying certain dressings, made from derris powder, to the backs of animals at the proper times from 90 per cent. to 100 per cent. of the warbles can be killed. The killing of the warbles while they are on the backs of the animals means, of course, that flies cannot develop from them, and so the number of flies present in the following summer would be correspondingly reduced. If cattle were treated so well and so systematically as to kill practically all the grubs on their backs, the number of warble flies present in the country would be reduced to a negligible quantity in a short time.

Warble washes can be applied to the animal's back with a piece of cloth, but it is advisable to brush the back first with a stiff brush, in order to expose the warble holes. If only a small number of warbles are present, each warble lump should be well rubbed over with the wash. If the animal has a large number of warbles it is advisable to apply the wash all over the back and flanks. The wash should be well rubbed in and sufficient of it used to penetrate through the hair.

In order to obtain the maximum kill of warbles, it is necessary to apply the dressings at monthly intervals during the period while warbles are appearing on the backs of the animals. Generally three dressings, applied about the middle of March, the middle of April and the middle of May, give entirely satisfactory results; but in some districts it may be necessary to apply a fourth dressing in June to kill late warbles.

Attention is called to Leaflet No. 75 of the Department of Agriculture, entitled "The Warble Fly."

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

The last of the special series of sermons, in connection with the Church of Ireland Home Mission Society, on "Vital Christianity," will be preached at Afternoon Service (3.30 o'clock) to-morrow in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, by the Rev. R. H. Dowse, Rector of St. Peter's Parish, whose subject will be "Loyalty."

The preacher at Morning Service (11 o'clock) will be the Rev. Canon Long, Rector of Newcastle, Co. Wicklow.

FREE STATE BUTTER STOCKS

POSITION ON MARCH 31

The following table, which has been compiled by the Department of Agriculture from returns furnished under the Dairy Produce Act, 1931, shows the quantity of butter held on the 31st ultimo in all public cold stores in Saorstat Eireann and at the premises of manufacturers of creamery and factory butter and principal merchants. The figures do not include the day to-day stocks in the hands of shopkeepers:—

	Creamery Butter. Cwt.	Factory and other Butter. Cwt.
Held in public cold stores for:
(a) Creamery proprietors	19	—
(b) Other persons	502	87
Held at creameries	2,627	—
Held at merchants premises and butter factories	649	1,414
Totals on 31st March	3,797	1,501
Totals on 15th March	4,558	2,629

In the period from the 16th to the 31st March, the production of creamery butter was approximately 15,992 cwt., and the quantity stated to have been exported was 559 cwt. Public cold stores received 70 cwt., and the withdrawals amounted to 1,447 cwt., leaving a net movement of 1,377 cwt. of creamery butter out of public cold stores.

WIRELESS SETS FOR THE BLIND

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Council for the Welfare of the Blind of Ireland held at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, there were present:—Mr. Denis Barrett, in the chair; Miss Angela Boland, Mr. Denis Byrne, Miss Eacott, Miss Long, Dr. F. S. Lavery, Dr. T. G. Moorhead, Mr. Wm. MacPherson, Dr. J. S. Quin, Mrs. Quin, Miss Rochfort-Wade, Mr. D. O'Connor, representing the National League of the Blind, and the Secretary.

It was decided to approach the authorities of the Technical Schools with a view to the possibility of arranging Esperanto Classes for the blind in the autumn.

In response to requests from blind people, it was decided to purchase one Braille writing machine and one Esperanto-English dictionary, to be loaned to blind applicants.

The Chairman announced that the Companions of St. Patrick had given a grant from their funds towards the purchase of wireless sets for the blind, in addition to individual subscriptions from members. This help, while very welcome, is by no means sufficient to meet the need of the long-waiting list of applicants for wireless.

The Wireless Committee reported that a letter had been received from the Minister for Finance in which it was stated "that the Oireachtas will shortly be invited to approve the granting of the concession whereby exemption from duty will be given in respect of wireless sets imported for the use of blind persons by any institution or society which satisfies the Revenue Commissioners that its primary object was the amelioration of the lot of blind persons." This proposed concession was considered to be a direct result of the efforts of the National Council.

Mr. Edward Bewley was elected Chairman of the Wireless Committee. Sir Thomas Myles (President of the Companions of St. Patrick) was co-opted a Vice-president of the National Council. Dr. Edward Magennis was elected a member of the Executive Committee, and Mr. W. H. Meredith was appointed a member of the Wireless Committee.

A special vote of thanks was passed to Miss M. Hall (Bray) for valuable help in connection with the work of the National Council. It was reported that the usual space at the Spring Show for the sale of work done by the blind had been obtained.

TOBACCO TRADE BOARD

A meeting of the Tobacco Trade Board was held in Dublin on 9th inst., the following members being in attendance:—

Appointed Members—Mr. T. Kelly, T.D. (Chairman), Miss E. M. Cunningham, M.A. (Deputy Chairman), and J. Healy, P.C.

Employers' Representatives—Messrs. T. Bradford, S. M. Nesbitt and C. E. Whitcroft, Dublin; J. M. Carroll, Dundalk; M. V. Lyons, Cork; J. F. Hurley and G. Spillane, Limerick.

Workers' Representatives—Messrs. E. P. Hart, T. O'Reilly, L. H. Faithfull, P. Murray and Miss M. Cullen, Dublin; Mr. M. Connor, Drogheda, and Miss M. Keane, Limerick.

The Board had under consideration the question of minimum rates of wages for workers concerned, and decided to issue proposals to the trade regarding the matter.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Irish Foals : A Passion Play : Carrigeen Moss : The Thrush's Breakfast : Shakespeare as Call-Boy

Shakespeare as Call-Boy

A few days ago I saw a boy of the Dublin messenger service in his smart little uniform, with box-hat tilted on one side in approved style, guarding a place for someone in a theatre queue. This is a custom that is common in London and other cities across the Channel; but how many know that something like it goes back to Shakespeare's time?

According to Dr. Johnson, Shakespeare himself organised a service of boys to tend the horses on which patrons rode to the theatre. This was in those early days when he was a stranger in the metropolis, employed in those humble tasks about the playhouse which at last secured him entry to the actors' art. From minding horses he rose to call-boy, thence to player, and so to playwright. I wonder if any Irish Shakespeare is minding cars, or rapping at the green-room door in the Gate, the Abbey or the Gaiety!

The Thrush's Breakfast

These spring mornings are vibrant with the song of birds from earliest dawn, but mingled with their music one can occasionally discern the sound of measured tapping, strangely reminiscent of the age-old legend of the fairy cobbler. Given sufficient strength of mind to sally forth on a tour of inspection, the early riser may possibly be rewarded with the interesting sight of a thrush hard at work preparing his breakfast. When he finds a snail to his liking he takes it to the nearest suitable stone, against which he proceeds to batter it with all the strength he can muster till the shell breaks, revealing the luscious morsel within, which is promptly swallowed. Sometimes quite a number of empty snail shells are to be found in the vicinity of an "anvil." I understand that the thrush is unique among birds for his strange liking for "tinned" meat.

A Passion Play

Fflorens Roch, who has written the Passion Play which Mr. F. P. Carey has arranged to broadcast from 2RN to-morrow (Palm Sunday) evening, is the Hon. Mrs. Walter Roch, daughter of Lord Treowen, and a prominent figure in Catholic circles in London. Her religious plays, all of which, including that here referred to, have been published by the Catholic Truth Society, London, and she is so interested in the idea of the religious play generally, and so solicitous for its development, that she offers her works free of acting rights or conditions of any kind. To-morrow night's play, "And With the Children—!" takes title and theme from the reference in the Antiphon for Palm Sunday, traverses all the incidents of the first Holy Week, and is held to be the most powerful of all her works, excelling even in appeal her truly beautiful Nativity Play, "Wonder Night." A distinguished Irishman, naturally interested in the success of the broadcast, is Mr. John P. Boland, K.S.G., Hon. Secretary to the Catholic Truth Society, whom in pre-Treaty days we knew as the very indefatigable M.P. for South Kerry, and Whip of the Irish Parliamentary Party. Mr. Boland is one of the best-known and most popular men among our exiles in London, where, together with his gifted wife, daughter of the late Dr. Moloney, of Melbourne, he has devoted himself to religious activities for the past fifteen years.

Song Collaborators

I hear that Miss Kitty O'Doherty and Fay Sargent have collaborated in writing a number of modern songs, and they will shortly be given over the radio. They are not old Irish airs arranged to new words, but topical songs of the day—some sentimental, others humorous—as one can understand Fay Sargent writing for the amusement of her audience. I think that this is Miss O'Doherty's first effort at this kind of composition, and it will interest many people. We frequently hear the complaint that nothing new is being given in Irish songs, and most of the ditties and romantic Irish songs which have had such a success in Ireland came from the Irish composers in the United States. "Mother Machree" and "The Little Bit of Heaven," made popular by John McCormack, were picked up in America. It was the knowledge that this class of song was what the general public liked, and for which there was no substitute over here, that encouraged the composers to provide the deficiency. It will be interesting to see how these songs will be received.

New Foals

I have just heard that Mr. Dan Sullivan's great brood mare, Resplendent, has a nice filly foal by Blandford. The youngster, who was foaled in France at the Aga Khan's stud farm near Paris a fortnight ago, is an own sister to Windsor Lad, last year's Derby and St. Leger winner, who was bred by Mr. Sullivan. Resplendent is visiting Blenheim, the Derby hero of 1930, who now stands at the Aga Khan's (his owner) place in France. Queen Scotia, who is also visiting Blenheim, has a filly foal by Beresford. Solferima, another Tetratema-Sunbridge mare of Mr. Sullivan's, is in foal to Orwell, and has also gone to the Aga Khan's place to Blenheim. Lady Earn, the dam of many winners, has a filly this season by Birthright, but, I understand, her owner does not intend to breed from her again. Blenheim, a son of Blandford, will be very much in request from now on. Last year his progeny rendered an excellent account of themselves, and they were his first crop.

A Great Architect

I wonder how many of those who pass daily such familiar buildings as the Four Courts, the Custom House and the Bank of Ireland ever spare a thought for the men who were responsible for their construction. The reflection occurred to me in the National Portrait Gallery recently, when I found myself facing a water colour miniature of James Gandon (1743-1823), "dressed in a red coat or gown, with fur collar and cuffs." The picture is by Horace Hone, and was presented to the National Gallery by Nathaniel Hone, R.H.A. Gandon, who was of Huguenot extraction, came to Dublin in 1781 to superintend the building of the Custom House from his own designs. When that structure was finished, Gandon decided to remain in Dublin, and took up residence in Mecklenburgh street. The Irish Parliament of the day was determined to make Dublin a worthy capital city, and Gandon was soon entrusted with such commissions as old Carlisle Bridge, the east front of the Parliament House and the completion of the Four Courts. Cooley was the original architect of the latter building, but he died before it was finished. Gandon, who had been a pupil of Sir William Chambers, the architect of Somerset House, in London, was a man of fine taste, and Dublin seems to have been fortunate in securing his services. He did much to encourage artistic talent in Ireland by giving the decorative part of his undertakings to Irish artists. Indeed, art was rather at a discount when Gandon arrived in Dublin; for he mentions that any pictures which he happened to see were suspended on walls without frames or glass.

Carrigeen

The sale of carrigeen moss has now become a national industry, and as such is bound to bring considerable profit to those coast dwellers who in years gone by got very little for the toilsome work of picking it and preparing it for market. The best carrigeen moss grows on flat rocks so far out into the water that it is only during the spring tides that it is possible to reach them on foot. In many cases it is necessary for the picker to wade waist-high in order to secure sufficient suitable stuff; for as a rule the best moss grows in the deepest water. A considerable time must elapse before the stuff is ready for market. It is usually spread on a grassy slope to be bleached by alternate sun and rain, and afterwards well dried. In some places in the past carrigeen was used lavishly in the feeding of young calves. It was boiled in water, the liquid being then mixed with milk. This diet was considered very good for promoting a silky sheen on the coats of the animals.

BOYS' BRIGADE 32ND COMPANY

ANNUAL INSPECTION AND DISPLAY

The thirty-fifth annual inspection and gymnastic display of the 32nd Dublin Company, Boys' Brigade, was held in the Abbey Lecture Hall last night. The Very Rev. J. L. Morrow, M.A., D.D., Company President, was chairman, and Mr. J. W. Morgan, Battalion President, carried out the inspection.

After the general salute and opening hymn, Mr. Morgan inspected the company, and then took the salute during the march past. Following this came platoon drill, under the direction of Captain R. P. Dawson. The band of the 14th Dublin Company then played, conducted by Mr. C. G. Bannister, B.B.C.M. The physical training exhibition came next, followed by the gymnastic display, which was divided into five sections. Lieutenant S. H. Polden directed the ground pyramids (juniors); Lieutenant E. Hay had charge of the parallel bars and vaulting-horse displays by the seniors, and Staff-Sergeant B. Lyons and Lieutenant R. A. Cuthbertson directed, respectively, the vaulting-horse work and games of the juniors.

After a second band selection, Mr Morgan gave a short address, in which he congratulated the president, officers, and rank and file of the company on the splendid turn-out and display.

ANNUAL PARADE SERVICE

The annual Parade Service of the 11th Dublin Company of the Boys' Brigade will be held at St. Victor's Church, Donore avenue, to-morrow, at 7 p.m. The special preacher will be the Right Rev. A. W. Barton, D.D., Lord Bishop of Kilmore.

"THE LILIES OF THE FIELD"

AMUSING COMEDY AT ABBEY THEATRE

There was a very large audience at the Abbey Theatre last night for the performance of "The Lilies of the Field," a delightful three-act comedy, presented by Mr. Tom Purefoy and a group of talented players in aid of the Rotunda Hospital Linen Guild.

In this comedy the author, John Hastings Turner, pokes great fun at some of the fashions and foibles of the Victorians, using as his background the family of a country vicar. The latter is presented as rather a lovable type, who, however successful in the pulpit, is certainly very innocent in worldly affairs. Very amusing situations are provided and rare types introduced, and everything turns out satisfactorily in the end.

The play is well presented, and Mr. Purefoy is to be congratulated on his work in that direction. The settings, dressing and lighting were all capital. Mr. Purefoy himself played with great success the part of the Vicar, giving the character a natural and perfectly understandable aspect. He had an excellent partner in Molly Gatenby, as his wife, Ann. The twin daughters, in the piece were Maureen Davidson and Muriel Lougbridge, and they played up to each other admirably, in every sense. Hermione Wilson played the part of the grandmother with great understanding, and Charles Pilkington carried the part of Barnaby Haddon, the antiquarian, with distinction. John White scored cleverly as the "Byronic" young man about town, and Clodagh Garratt and Viola Howe were capital in the parts of the Victorians, Monica Flane and Lady Susan Rocker.

The applause throughout the play showed how thoroughly the audience enjoyed the entertainment. The play will be repeated to-night at 8.30.

DUBLIN'S LOW DEATH RATE

Of the 304 births registered in the Irish Free State during the week ended April 6th last 199 took place in Dublin, and represented a birth rate of 24.7 per 1,000 of the population. The birth rate for the twelve principal towns was 22.8 per 1,000.

The total number of deaths during the week under review was 241, and the highest death rate was reported from Waterford—31.3 per 1,000. Dublin's death rate during that week was only 16.4 per 1,000.

APPOINTMENT OF SURGEON

Dr. Christopher Sullivan, F.R.C.S.I., brother of Mr. Justice Sullivan, President of the High Court, and cousin of the late Mr. T. Healy, has been appointed Surgeon to the Royal Hospital for Incurables, Donnybrook, Dublin.

ENTRANCE TO ROYAL NAVY.

In the Examination recently held for admission to the Royal Navy, H. B. Vance, of Mourne Grange School, Kilkeel, was one of the successful candidates. H. B. Vance is the son of the late Major W. Vance, M.C., 1st Royal Irish Fusiliers, and of Mrs. Vance, Manse road, Kilkeel. —(Advt.)

ELECTRICITY IN LIFE

AN "IRISH TIMES" EXAMPLE

CITED IN FARADAY LECTURE

"An example of how electricity had facilitated communication was given by the fact that one of their daily papers (the Irish Times) had been able to speak to the Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman Byrne) as he was proceeding home on board the Olympic."

This statement above was made last evening by Professor E. W. Marchant, D.Sc., the distinguished student of electrical research, in the course of his Faraday Lecture, entitled "Electricity in the Life of To-day," which he gave under the auspices of the Irish Centre of the Institute of Electrical Engineers, in the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin.

Mr. Sean Lemass (Minister for Industry and Commerce) presided and introduced the lecturer, who, he said, occupied the Chair of Electrical Engineering at the University of Liverpool, and also had held the high office of President of the Institute of Electrical Engineers. There were few people in the world to-day, said Mr. Lemass, who could speak with such authority as Professor Marchant on the subject which he had chosen. The lecturer had devoted his life to the study of electrical problems, and his address would be of value and interest not only to electrical engineers, but also to the general public.

MARKED DEVELOPMENT

Professor Marchant, in the course of his lecture, said that the capital at present invested in electricity supply undertakings was over £450,000,000, and in addition the English Post Office controlled electrical plant to the value of £130,000,000. The electrical industry was now the fifth largest in England.

Electricity nowadays was employed in medicine for diagnosing diseases of the heart. It was used by the surgeon in his operations, and by the physician for the treatment of disease. Experiments with radium, which emits charged particles of electricity, had proved it to be one of the most effective means of dealing with cancer.

Electricity made it possible for them to speak by telephone to 90 per cent. of the world's telephone subscribers. But perhaps the greatest service electricity gave to-day was broadcasting; as they had heard on the last three Christmas Days, the King could now broadcast simultaneously to listeners in all the countries that form the British Empire.

Mr. Lemass proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer. He said that, as one who had certain association with the work of the Electricity Supply Board, he thought he could say that the lecturer, by his interesting lecture, would have done much to develop a habit of mind with regard to electricity as essential to civilised life, essential in industry for efficient production, and essential for the development of the comforts of the home. Here in the Irish Free State the generation and distribution of electrical current was undertaken by a State-owned national organisation. It was charged with the function of securing an extended use of electricity for all purposes.

The lecture not only had been instructive, but productive of thought. It opened up a vista of possibilities in the future that experts like the lecturer might adapt to practical purposes.

The vote of thanks was passed with acclamation, and the lecturer replied.

Mr. Warren Storey, M.I.E.E., M.I.C.E.I., Vice-Chairman of the Irish Centre of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Minister for presiding, said that Mr. Lemass had done a great deal of reconstruction work on behalf of Irish industry. His presence on the platform was an indication of the interest that the Government took in this most important and essential commodity—electricity.

Mr. Lemass replied, and the proceedings came to an end.

BIG PRICES FOR THE COATS' COLLECTION

EIGHT COROT PICTURES REALISE 4,850 GNS.

Eight Corot pictures, belonging to the late Major J. A. Coats, brought in a total of 4,850 guineas at Christie's yesterday. "A Peasant Girl" in a landscape fetched 960 guineas, and "The Little Bathers" realised 900 guineas. A picture by d'Aubigny, "Moonlight on the Oise," sold for 450 guineas.

A Fruit Piece by the seventeenth century Dutch master, Beyeren, brought 850 guineas, and "Still Life," signed and dated by Kalff, 1658, made 2,000 guineas. A family group by Rubens sold at 1,700 guineas.

The Major Coats' pictures brought in a total of 22,441 guineas.

BOYS' BRIGADE INSPECTION

Speaking at the annual inspection of the First Dublin Company, Boys' Brigade, in the Mansion House on Thursday night last, Mr. G. W. Shannon said that the company attained third place in the Ambulance competition. A previous report that Mr. Shannon had said "first place" was incorrect; this place was won by the 20th Dublin Company.

THE COATS COLLECTION

A family group, by Rubens, which changed ownership for 1,700 guineas at yesterday's sale at Christie's of a collection of pictures, the former property of the late Major J. A. Coats.

BALLSBRIDGE HOPE

DUBLIN SHOW AND FAIR

THE DIRECTOR'S PREDICTION

A meeting of the Committee of Agriculture was held at Ballsbridge on Thursday, 11th April, Vice Admiral A. Craig Waller, C.B., D.L., in the chair.

At the opening of the meeting the chairman referred to the great loss the Society had sustained by the death of Mr. James J. Maher, and the following vote of condolence was passed in silence:—

"The Committee of Agriculture have learned with deep regret of the death of Mr. James J. Maher, who had been a valued member of the Horse Show Committee for many years, and whose services as a Special Ring Steward in connection with the International Military Jumping Competitions at Ballsbridge were greatly appreciated by the Society. Mr. Maher's extensive knowledge of Irish horse-breeding was an invaluable asset in the work of the Society, and his advice was always much valued and appreciated by the Horse Show Committee. The Committee of Agriculture beg to tender to Mrs. Maher and relatives this expression of their deepest sympathy."

The Director announced that the entries in the principal live-stock sections for the coming Spring Show were exceedingly good, and would show an increase on last year's total.

Mr. Bohane also announced that excellent progress had been made in all new constructional work, and everything was now nearing completion.

From the numerous inquiries received, he predicted that the support that would be recorded to the coming Show and the Saorstat Industries Fair would be demonstrated in an attendance unequalled in the history of the Society's Spring Shows.

A very comprehensive programme of daily events was presented to the meeting, and the Committee received with particular pleasure the intimation that the Minister for Defence had approved of the inclusion of a Military Display by the 1st Field Artillery Brigade and gymnastic displays by gymnastic teams from the Curragh Command, from the Wednesday to the Saturday of the Show.

An entry of nearly fifty exhibits for the special awards for Saorstat manufactures and new implements was announced—the greatest entry in the history of the Society—and a large panel of judges was appointed for this purpose.

The Committee dealt with a number of details associated with the Show which will add to the amenities of what is now becoming known as Ireland's annual national event.

There were present:—The Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, D. R. Pack-Beresford, O.B.E., D.L., and Harry Franks, M.A., F.S.I. (Vice-Presidents); R. A. Butler, J. V. Coyle, C.B.E., B.L.; R. W. Hall-Dare, Major M. C. Hamilton, Major W. G. Dease, Major E. M. Conolly, C.M.G.; Henry Kennedy, M.A., D.Sc.; H. Barrington Jellett, H. J. Toler-Aylward, R. K. Wright, Right Hon. Lord Holmpatrick, M.C.; Richard Kelly, W. J. Walsh, L. C. Cuffe, John J. Counihan, Professor J. P. Drew, A.R.C.Sc.I.; Professor F. E. Hackett, M.A., Ph.D., and John Leonard (Honorary Secretaries); Edward Bohane, C.B.E., LL.D. (Director).

WIRELESS SETS FOR FREE STATE BLIND

The Irish Association for the Blind reports that there has been a gradual increase in the number of free wireless receiving licences issued to registered blind persons by the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs. In 1928 the number was 30; in 1932 there were 59, and in 1935 the number has gone up to 101. As there are at least 5,000 blind persons in this country, most of whom are not in a position to have a radio set of their own, it will be seen that little more than a beginning has been made in assisting the blind in this respect. The communication from the Minister for Finance to the Association regarding the introduction in the near future of proposals to the Oireachtas for the exemption of duties on wireless receiving sets imported by institutions and societies engaged in work for the amelioration of the blind has been well received by all sections of the blind at home, as well as in other countries.

IRISH CLERKS AND ASSISTANTS

The weekly meeting of the Irish Clerks' and Assistants' Association was held at 15 College Green, Dublin, on Thursday night, Mr. Bart. Keogh presiding. Claims for sickness, unemployment, and mortality amounting to £53 5s. were passed and paid.

Dr. T. O'Mahony resigned from his position as one of the Association's doctors. Dr. J. Gordon Wilson, of 14 Greenfield road, Blackrock, and 27 Westland row, Dublin, was elected to the vacant position.

The body of a middle-aged man taken from the River Leam, at Leamington, Warwickshire, last night, had a bullet wound on either side of the head. An empty revolver holster was in the clothing. The man is believed to be a Leamington resident.

Daily Programme Review

TO-DAY

DUBLIN: Variety. Bohemian Musical Society, 8.30.

NORTHERN IRELAND: The Ulster Male Voice Choir, 8.20.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Music Hall, 8.30.

REGIONAL: Pianoforte Recital by Ponishnoff, 9.30.

SCOTTISH: "A Nicht wi' Frame." Songs and Stories, 7.25.

ROME: Opera, "The Mastersingers" (Wagner), 8.

BERLIN: Paul Lincke Programme. Conductor, the Composer, 7.10.

MUSIC HALL, as represented in the B.B.C. National programme to-night, announces virtually an all-star bill. At the top of the list there is Cecily Courtneidge, popular favourite on stage and screen, equally popular, but, perhaps, less frequent, on the air; Collinson and Dean, two excellent up-to-date comedians; Robert Chisholm, the popular dramatic baritone; Lea Seidl, the Viennese star of musical comedy, and, lastly, we are to hear some more of "Gert" and "Daisy's" delightful wisdom through Elsie and Doris Waters. The B.B.C. Variety Orchestra, as usual, will be directed by Kneale Kelly.

Henry Hall's Guest Night, which occurs to-night, is likely to have a larger number of listeners than ever, since, by the putting forward of the clock, many will realise that for once they can listen till midnight and still retire to bed at eleven.

Al Berlin and his Band will give their first Midland broadcast at 6.30 on that wave-length.

"A Nicht wi' Frame" is a programme in which some of the songs and stories of the late W. F. Frame, one of Scotland's finest entertainers, will be heard. It has been devised and will be presented by his son, James Frame Flint.

The saxophone will be heard to-night in an unusual setting. Sigurd Rascher will play a saxophone concerto by Lars Eric Larsson, with the B.B.C. Orchestra, in a programme of serious music, demonstrating that it can be a sympathetic musical instrument when treated as such. It is placed in a programme among such items as "The Bronze Horse" Overture by Auber, and Saint-Saëns's "Henry VIII." ballet music. (Regional, 8).

Lovers of Wagner's opera, "The Mastersingers," and there are many, will be glad to note that the performance to-night will be relayed from the Teatro Reale, Rome.

TO-MORROW

DUBLIN: Passion Play, "And with the Children—!" 8.15.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Boys' Brigade Silver Jubilee Service (Belfast Batt.), from Assembly Hall, Belfast, 3.30.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Orchestral Concert, 9.

REGIONAL: Sunday Orchestral Concert, 9.20.

WEST: Welsh Choral Concert, 4.30.

DEUTSCHLANDSENDER: "St. John Passion" (Bach), 8.

BUDAPEST: Operetta, "A Kiss in Spring" (Kálmán). Conductor, the Composer, 8.5.

HOLY WEEK will be observed in the broadcasting programmes by special items of a solemn character, notably, of course, on Good Friday. In to-morrow's programme Dublin, Athlone and Cork will broadcast a Passion Play, written by Fflorens Roch (the Hon. Mrs. Walter Roch), entitled "And with the Children—!" The play will be produced by Charles Carey, who also is included in the cast, with John Stephenson, Eileen Tree and Maire Nic Suiblaigh for the principal parts.

The "St. John Passion," by Bach, coming from Deutschlandsender, will be performed by the Singakademie Choir, the Philharmonic Orchestra and vocal soloists, conducted by Georg Schumann.

Herman Scherchen, the distinguished German musician, will conduct the Sunday Orchestral Concert this week. Robert Murchie (flute), Jean Pougnet (violin) and Harold Samuel (pianoforte) will play Bach's Triple Concerto in A minor in the course of the concert, the programme of which also includes Hindemith's Symphony, "Matthias the Painter," which had its first performance in England last December, when it also was broadcast.

The Orchestral Concert in the Droitwich programme will be given by the Folkestone Municipal Orchestra, conducted by Eldridge Newman, in a programme of popular music, commencing with Eric Coates's Suite, "London Every Day." Louis Godowsky will be heard as solo violinist and composer in the first performance of his new Rhapsody Hungarica, which is said to be a remarkably interesting and brilliant violin work. Reginald Charles (bass) will sing three songs to orchestral accompaniment. The concert will be relayed direct from the Seas Cliff Hall, Folkestone.

SUNDAY'S PROGRAMMES

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

Ireland and the Crown

Mr. Buchan Proposes a Fresh Deal

The King's Grace, 1910-1935. By John Buchan. London: Hodder and Stoughton. 5/- net.

A FEW weeks ago we reviewed at some length Mr. De Somervell's fine book, a detailed study of ing George's reign. Mr. John Buchan's book is much shorter—it is not much more than 300 pages long, in large type. In effect, this work is less a history than an essay. Its merits are those of quiet retrospect, graceful writing. Mr. Buchan never has done, we think, a more temperate or worthy piece of work. The story of the troubled eve of war, the storm of four wild years, the unsettled morrow, is told again, in a style to please all readers of taste.

We are particularly interested, however, in the section on Ireland since the War, in which Mr. Buchan writes with a fine generosity. The Black and Tan campaign is condemned unsparingly, and then His Majesty's part in bringing an end to the strife is described—the words of the famous speech at Belfast are given in full. The split among the Irish leaders was between "the realists" and "the symbolists," but Mr. Buchan hastens to say that he uses the word symbolist in no contemptuous sense; "symbols are gracious and potent things." Civil war came, and Irishmen of note in all groups perished by violence. "Erskine Childers, than whom no revolution ever produced a nobler or purer spirit," receives a tribute of sad respect, not less than Griffith, Collins and O'Higgins.

The Whittling Process

Ireland had not found peace, even when civil war yielded to the ten years of Mr. Cosgrave's homely rule. "The symbolists," Mr. Buchan says, "were still powerful, and their appeal was especially to uprooted and malcontent youth. In February, 1932, Mr. Cosgrave was defeated in a general election in which his opponents offered no bribes except the chance of sacrifice and the certainty of conflict. Mr. de Valera had the mind of some great ecclesiastic of the Middle Ages, half-mathematical, half-mystical, and to him the symbol was dearer than the fact. He had never accepted the Treaty, and he set himself to whittle it away." Mr. Buchan goes on to sketch the measures which followed and proceeds: "Many have wished that the Treaty and its heritage of debate could be blotted out and the cards dealt afresh, for the present situation does justice neither to Britain's dignity nor to her generosity, and it inflicts futile suffering on Ireland."

Britain's Apathy.

These surely are words of weight, coming from that temperate Scottish writer who, as an announcement from Buckingham Palace told us recently, has been appointed Governor-General of Canada. We read on: "The obstacle to a fresh deal is not Britain's pride, but Britain's apathy about the whole business. . . . . Yet this very popular apathy might make it easier for statesmanship to break the vicious circle, for the present situation offers no hope for the future."

Stevenson at Davos

Robert Louis Stevenson at Davos. By W. G. Lockett. London: Hurst and Blackett. 10/6 net.

LIKE H. G. Moors's delightful book, "With Stevenson in Samoa," Mr. Lockett's covers a particular period in Stevenson's life. Always in delicate health, at one time of his life Stevenson spent two winters at Davos, in Switzerland. This portion of his life has been little touched upon before now, mainly owing to lack of accurate knowledge, but the author, by virtue of thirty years' residence in Switzerland as British Consul, is well suited to shed light on this shrouded period.

Mr. Lockett, a resident himself at Davos, was personally familiar with a number of the friends and acquaintances of Stevenson, and has been enabled to reconstruct with accuracy almost the whole of this episode in Stevenson's life. The Davos Press, and such writings as are known t. belong to this time, are treated to the satisfaction of the reader and bibliophile. There is a number of penportraits, which enable one to visualise the great novelist as a winter sportsman and friend in ordinary life. It makes a very welcome addition to Stevensoniana.

Horses in America

Thoroughbreds Too "Hot" for Hacking

Riding Along. By Antonio P. Fachiri. London: Harker. 8/6 net.
Tack Room Tattles. By John McKenney. Illustrated by Paul Brown. London: Scribner's. 15/- net.

MR. FACHIRI, in his extremely interesting book on the management and riding of horses, addresses himself chiefly to the young. His experience is American, and he deplores "the slovenly appearance of nine-tenths of the grooms whom I have seen in charge of horses." America must be brisker, if it is to rival England in style. In like manner, Americans have a wrong notion of blood.

> Ask any English child of twelve who has had, say, five years' riding experience whether he or she would like a cob instead of their well-bred mount, and note the indignation such a question arouses. . . . . Inquire whether thoroughbreds are dangerous to ride, and mirth will supply you with the answer. Why? Simply because these children have come into contact with thoroughbreds' ways since they graduated from their first pony.

In Virginia, it seems, hunters and hunter-hacks are of blood stock, but everywhere else in America thoroughbreds are supposed to be too "hot" for hacking.

Another good book for horse-lovers is "Tack Room Tattles," a book about the American hunting field, written in a sporting diction which we hesitate to call slang. Mr. McKenney's tales of the field illustrate the whole round of the sport, and he has some lively verses in the best tradition.

Both books have copious and excellent pictures of horses in action and the field. Mr. Paul Brown's pencil sketches of racers, touts and bookies are a joy.

Jadwiga of Poland

Queen Jadwiga of Poland. By Monica M. Gardner. London: Ouseley. 3s. 6d. net.

MISS GARDNER continues her biographical studies of leading personages in Polish history. In Jadwiga she has an interesting subject, and does not fail to extract every ounce of interest. It is the saintliness of the "girl queen, who carried out an extraordinary mission for God" in the days when there were still in Eastern Europe peoples unconverted to Christianity, that has attracted Miss Gardner's attention. Yet, the woman and queen in Jadwiga are not neglected, and the author's grasp of the barbaric pageantry and politics of Poland, Lithuania and Austria is clearly shown.

The Poles are now making a case for the canonisation of Queen Jadwiga, and the fact gives topicality to Miss Gardner's work.

Noise in Modern Life

The Problem of Noise. By F. C. Bartlett, M.A., F.R.S. Cambridge University Press. 3s. 6d. net.

THERE are several reasons why we should be grateful to Professor Bartlett for his treatment of the problem of noise. The principal one is that some definite knowledge of the effects it produces is highly desirable, in view of the many discussions which centre round it nowadays. It is a relief to know that many of the evil effects attributed to it are non-existent. Very loud noises may damage the ear, of course, but the man-in-the-street is never likely to be within earshot of them. Many experiments are described to show that workers subjected to a constant background of noise are affected slightly at first, but recover soon and continue their work, apparently unaffected by it. The chief harm, however, is done by sporadic noises. Mental workers seem to show the greatest disturbance from noise, but there is little or no experimental evidence on this point. Probably, it is too difficult at present to measure the type of work that is most affected.

Professor Bartlett has many sensible things to say about our defence against noise. He suggests ear-defenders and sound-proof rooms in regions where noises are inevitable, and the silencing by engineering research of such noisemongers as internal combustion engines and pneumatic drills. Intelligent town-planning and administration of heavy transport will commend themselves to all, but "the finally effective method here, as elsewhere, is by individual action; and this, perhaps, will best come as a slow growth of that kind of education which attempts to produce habits of consideration for the well-being of others."

Retreat to Mexico

Sunshine, Senoritas and a Bullfight

Time Out for Adventure. By Leonidas W. Ramsay. London: Stanley Paul. 18s. net.

TWO American business men decided that they had had enough of the depression, of the irritations of office life, and of the monotony of a city existence. They found their thoughts turning "toward a lan l of gay flowers and golden sunshine, of dark-eyed señoritas and quaint melodies, of beautifully domed churches and adobe huts, of snow-covered mountains and tropical plains, of strong liquors and peppery foods, of bloody history and ruined cities." They went to Mexico. This book is the record of their travels, light-hearted, yet thorough, detailed, yet never dull. It is very long, and an enormous amount of information about every conceivable aspect of Mexican life can be found in its pages; but the authors' keen observation and unpretentious humour mitigate against boredom.

Mummies at Guanjuato

care—the price of taxis, the best bar, the best hotel, the casino and the cathedral. They went on to Aguascalientes, Guanajuato, Mexico City, Yucatan, Tehuantepec, where one of them received an invitation from a señorita to serenade her, and over the Sierra Madre range.

One remarkable chapter deals with the mummies in the graveyard at Guanjuato. They are "dry and light, as if made of papier-mâché." One of them is the corpse of a woman who was buried alive: her arms are raised, as if to protect her face. It takes a strong man even to look at the photographs. In Mexico City the adventurers went to a bull-fight, and they describe the scene with their usual eye for detail. The matador who "despatched the bull with one stroke of the sword, with apparently one-tenth of the effort which Babe Ruth takes to hit out a home run," is as real to the reader as the spectator who said: "It is so beautiful it makes tears come to my eyes." The book is illustrated almost on every page by one of the authors. His drawings are clear, decorative and sparing of line. The numerous photographs, however, are not quite so successful. The authors have grouped seven or eight of them together in each instance, cutting them to fit the page, and they are a little too small in most cases to give an adequate impression of the subject.

The Soya Bean

The Soya Bean. By Elizabeth Bowdidge. Oxford: The University Press (London: Milford). 6/- net.

THE recent successful cultivation in England of this wonderful plant opens a new field of tremendous importance. Not only does the soya bean afford a wholesome food in itself, but, under treatment, it yields a number of products of edible and industrial value. These are seemingly inexhaustible in amount, and range from nitro-glycerine to babies' food. Miss Bowdidge tells the story of the bean, its uses, manner of cultivation and value to the English farmer, to whom it offers a new hope of prosperity. Her counsel applies equally well, or even better, to the Free State, where we have a milder climate and plenty of land to devote to new crops.

BOOK REVIEWERS AND THE CUSTOMS

THE PREVENTIVE MEN ON THE TRAIL

A PROBLEM FOR THE CENSORSHIP BOARD

I WONDER if there is any truth in the rumour that the Free State revenue authorities are on the trail of the book reviewers. If I am correctly informed, they have prepared a list of all the people who receive review copies of books from England and other countries, either directly from the publishers, or through English journals, and that they propose to collect duty on all these copies from the recipients. It is, of course, the lone, the "free-lance" reviewers who will suffer—the people who do notices for the English weekly and monthly periodicals, of whom there are quite a number in the Free State, some bearing important and authoritative names, others almost unknown.

I sincerely hope that the rumour is not true. Reviewing at its best is not a highly-paid job, and the majority of people who get work from the English magazines are very far from rich. But with the burden of a tariff on their backs, the job would cease to be worth anything at all to them. Generally speaking, they receive their review copies one at a time—or, at any rate, no more than two or three at a time. Now, although the existing duty on books entering the country is only a penny per copy, yet the minimum duty that may be collected is half-a-crown; and half-a-crown is a pretty heavy tax on the small return that a reviewer gets for his work on a book. As far as I can see, the job of reviewing will cease to be worth while.

Valley of the Shadow

For even if the pecuniary loss were small, the inconvenience involved by such a tax is bound to be discouraging. If the books are to be taxed, they will go, presumably, through the hands of the Customs, and in the course of their passage a great blackness will descend on them, and they will be seen no more for heaven knows how long. Everybody who has obtained, or tried to obtain, anything from outside the Saorstat knows what happens. The books will reach the Customs sheds; after a longer or shorter interval, according to luck, the addressee will receive notice to the effect that a parcel is waiting for him, and that he must come and "clear" it. If he cannot come at one or another of the appointed times, the book will simply disappear into the queer places that gape for contraband articles, and the unhappy reviewer will have to write to his employer in England or wherever it is and explain that the Customs have seized his book, so that he cannot review it: which will not encourage the employer to send him many more books for review.

Case for the P.E.N.

But, even if the reviewer can find time to turn up with a pocketful of half-crowns, there will still have been a period of delay; and, since speed is very desirable in connection with a book review, the reviewers must still be handicapped. I sympathise deeply with them—if my information on the intentions of the Revenue Commissioners is correct. If so, I suggest that the P.E.N. Club might take steps to lay the reviewers' case before the Government. Whatever money the Revenue Commissioners might derive from such a tariff would make little difference to Mr. Sean MacEntee's Budget, but it would make a very great deal of difference to the unfortunate victims. If our own publishers turned out sufficient books to make a livelihood for reviewers, there might be some justification for the tax, but as things are there is none.

After the Fact

While I am on this subject of reviewers and the Government, an interesting speculation occurs to me. Can anything happen to an Irish periodical which reviews a book after that book has been banned by the Censorship of Publications Board? I can find nothing in the act to deal with such a contingency, but then I can find nothing in the act to explain quite a number of the antics of the said Board: the act, indeed, does not seem to matter much one way or the other. There was a case not so long ago when a Dublin newspaper, apparently ignorant that a certain book had been proscribed, published a lengthy notice of it, and nothing happened. But what if some waggish editor, anxious to provide fruity reading for his public, should print a long notice of a banned book which should contain, inter alia, long and representative quotations therefrom? I should like to know what the Board (a) could, and (b) would do about it. The theme has possibilities.

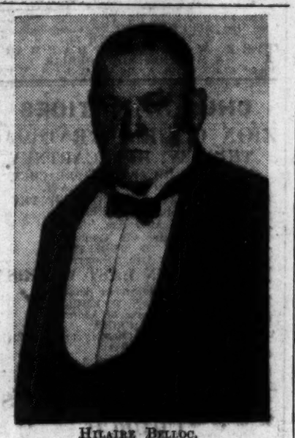
EPIC

The History of an Unscrupulous Campaign

How I Got Licked, and Why. By Upton Sinclair. London: Laurie. 7/6 net.

THIS is an English reprint of the book which Mr. Upton Sinclair wrote to describe his campaign as Democratic candidate for Governor of the State of California. It is written with all the gusto, the candour, the good humour that have appeared again and again in Mr. Sinclair's books; and, like much of his work, it is uneven in the quality of its writing. The circumstances of its composition may excuse this defect.

Mr. Sinclair's candidature as a Democrat was one of the sensations of United States politics in recent years. He had so long been so effective a propagandist—albeit a somewhat heterodox one—of Socialism that his decision to go forward on the Democratic ticket surprised his friends and colleagues as much as it surprised the leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties. In these pages Mr. Sinclair tells exactly how it happened that the invitation came to him from sections of the Democrats themselves, and what befell him in a remarkable campaign that lasted over a twelve-month.



HILAIRE BELLOC.

His aim, as he explains, was to make the campaign the beginning of a great effort to end poverty in California. That gave him the famous EPIC plan, which aroused so much enthusiasm on Sinclair's behalf on the one hand, and so much unscrupulous opposition to him on the other. This book is largely the story of the EPIC movement and its bid for power in California. As its author puts it, "it is a revelation of what money can do in American politics; what it will do when its politics are threatened."

Weapons of War

To Europeans the revelation will be startling. To readers familiar with Mr. Sinclair's work, from "The Jungle" onward, it will appear that American politicians and the American Press simply dealt out to him heavy punishment in revenge for his many crusades on behalf of honesty and decency in politics, business and journalism. And when they were dealing it out, they did it thoroughly, and used every instrument and agency, from the pulpit to wireless and the films, which could be pressed into the service of political corruption and political debauchery. Unfortunately for Mr. Sinclair, corruption and debauchery on the grand scale are the very essence of American politics, and this book only confirms too much of what he had ruthlessly exposed before.

That Mr. Sinclair was within an ace of winning in California was even more surprising than his nomination itself. Incidentally, some big American reputations crashed badly in the campaign.

Mysticism and Science

Forerunners of a Greater Race

Modern Mystics. By Sir Francis Younghusband. London: Murray. 10/6 net.

THE noted explorer of the Himalayas has a deep admiration for the Indians. They "undoubtedly have a finer intuition than Europeans." He describes the mystical notions which the finest Indian minds cherish, but he sees a grievous limitation in their thought—"of the grandeur and sublimity of the starry universe, as revealed by recent astronomy, they have been as ignorant as the ant is of the majesty of the Himalayan Mountain on which it is crawling."

The same defect Sir Francis sees in Christian mystics. Ste. Thérèse of Lisieux, the Carmelite nun, who lived, died, and was canonised in our own days, wins his respect. If she had lived, she would be just over sixty now, but she died in 1897, still a child—yet "her spirit is now inspiring hundreds of thousands of persons here on earth." Evan Roberts, the revivalist, whose astonishing movement shook Wales in 1904, is another strange being whose power over minds cannot be explained by orthodox psychology. Other modern mystics are discussed with equal sympathy and care.

The sum of the matter, however, as Sir Francis sees it, is that these people are forerunners of a greater race. Life has but begun its evolutionary ascent. Enormous length of ages lies ahead of mankind, and science—which the mystics have neglected—opens up vast new horizons. The spirit, moving men in the mass as it moved some individuals, and aided by the light of science, will make unimaginable conquests. This is an optimistic view, which contrasts somewhat sharply with the prospect that we see around us of a world drifting towards fresh, hideous war.

The Making of a Garden

A Charming Book for Nature Lovers

The Garden Grows. By John F. Leeming. London: Harrap. 7s. 6d. net.

SHORT of visiting this wonderful garden, which now has become one of the "show" places of Cheshire, the best thing is to read Mr. Leeming's book about it. When the author purchased his holding the outlook was not very hopeful. The ground was heavy clay, difficult to drain, and sour land. True, he had a landscape gardener, an expert from one of the very best firms, but alas! this man was used to planning the grounds in the Captain Boldwig sense—for millionaires—and was much handicapped by being limited in outlay. His new job was so different from that under his former employer, a patent medicine millionaire, who thought nothing of ordering fertilisers by hundreds of tons, that he could scarce conceal his contempt. However, he did his work to the last letter of the bond and left the garden in full swing.

Since the land was newly turned meadow land, a vast crop of weeds flourished, the heavy soil refused to absorb the rain water, and the lack of balanced chemical content in the earth virtually wiped out all the expensive plants. Assisted by his wife and some excellent ordinary gardeners, Mr. Leeming re-planned, dug drains, gained a notable victory over the weeds in a couple of summers, and studied the chemistry of soil enrichment, with entire success. With other things, he created two enormous borders, 50 yards long, with a turf walk in the centre. He dug a well and cleared out a pond, which in time became a thing of great beauty, and a joy for a time to the heron that battened upon the expensive fish with which it was stocked. More land was acquired, and the manner in which it was treated is an object-lesson to all householders, particularly in the matter of saving the trees.

The Heather Garden

A great triumph was the heather garden, the description of which should assist all interested in heaths. The chapters which deal of the building of the "barn", and outhouses will delight lovers of fine woods and rare craftsmanship in iron and old seasoned timber.

Other pleasant portions of the book include the "wild garden," and those creatures which were attracted to its solitude—Whit, the owl, George, the ungrateful hedgehog, and the rabbit, which, though closely confined, yet produced a large family. Mr. Leeming has produced something very like a classic, a book whose sentiments and example would have delighted that connoisseur of gardens, the late Rev. S. Baring-Gould. There are twenty-four beautiful illustrations and four plans.

A Canterbury Pilgrim

The Old Road. By Hilaire Belloc. London: Constable. New edition. 3/6 net.

TWENTY-ONE years have passed since the first edition of this fascinating little book appeared—one of Mr. Belloc's works which is certainly a classic. The subject is the road which ran in ancient times from Canterbury to Winchester, having its western terminus yet earlier at Stonehenge. Why Winchester was the older capital is reasoned out with admirable geographic ingenuity, and the book is a rare stimulus to geographic thought.

Needless to say, Mr. Belloc abounds in historical allusion. For him an ancient road is filled with the ghosts of the past, from the stalwart Romans down. He is ever ready, too, with some curious observation touching the nature of things. "I know an old man in Sussex," he says, "who never speaks but to say that everything needs rest. Land, he says, certainly; and also, he believes, wood and iron. For this he is still ridiculed, but what else are the most learned saying now?"

Along that ancient road Mr. Belloc travelled, even as he travelled (in a livelier book) the road to Rome. He came into Canterbury, with its towers that reach into the dim sky. "Save, perhaps, once at Beauvais, I had never known such a magic of great height and darkness." This "was the last thing in England which the true Gothic spirit made." There, in the cold north transept, he visited the spot where the archbishop fell so long ago; his fancy heard the choir chanting, the sudden clamour, the jangle of arms, blows, groans, boasts, and voices crying the dreadful news abroad.

Galsworthy Redivivus

The Winter Garden. Four Dramatic Pieces By John Galsworthy. Foreword by Mrs. Galsworthy. London: Duckworth. 5/- net.

ADMIRERS of the late Mr. John Galsworthy will be glad to possess this volume of one hundred pages, fragments of unfinished or unimportant work. There is a "squib" of a one-act play, written about 1908, which has the Galsworthy mannerisms. "Umm!" says one character. "Ye-e-e-as!" replies another. We see the playwright practising his tricks of realism.

Then there is a scene which was discarded from the text of "Escape." The flying convict meets an unhorsed fox-hunter, and the two young men fence with words before the perplexing revelation is made; Matt Dennant continues his flight rather than involve a fellow in his troubles. Galsworthy cancelled the skilfully-written little scene as "not advancing the action sufficiently."

Two other pieces are slight, but one of them, written in 1932, shows how Galsworthy could handle a famous case like that of the pearl necklace (the affair of Edwardian days), and make intense drama of the anguish that breeds crime.

Turkey and Egypt

Turkey. By T. L. Jarman. Egypt. By Lieutenant-Colonel P. G. Elgood. Modern States Series. London: Arrowsmith. 3/6 net each.

WE have commended already Sir Charles Petrie's book on Spain in this series. The latest volumes also are good. That on Turkey tells how the Ottoman Empire rose and fell—fell because it lived upon expansion, and further expansion was impossible. The Turks had no gift of liberal rule to make their realms lasting. Yet the new Turkey that rose, under Kemel Pasha's leadership, gave to the Turkish people themselves a measure of freedom and coherence that they never had possessed before. Mr. Jarman describes the Ghazi's work temperately and clearly, and shows that the Republic is secure against all foes; Turkey has become strong through weakness.

The book on Egypt opens fascinating vistas of the past, showing us the Pharaohs, the Ptolemies, the Arabs and the Mamelukes. No other living nation carries such a prodigious wealth of antique tradition as Egypt, although it may be doubted whether changes of language and religion have not severed a real connection between living Egypt and antiquity. Many historic morals start from these teeming pages. We are shown how Christian Egypt came to yield to Islam: a surrender that might have been avoided if the Church in Egypt had not been constrained against its sympathies by Byzantium.

New Novels

National Velvet. By Enid Bagnold. Heinemann. 7s. 6d. net.

Publicity Baby. By Countess Barcynska. Hurst and Blackett. 7/6 net.

IF "National Velvet" had been published during the Christmas season it would certainly have solved the problem of presents for all sorts of people. To say that it is a fairy-tale about a girl of fourteen who won a horse in a raffle and entered and rode it in the Grand National is to give a quite misleading impression of an airy, unsubstantial story. In reality it is a most realistic story, depicting in a remarkably vivid way the vie intime of a middle-class English family. To say that it is humorous is likewise unfair and misleading. Readers avoid, often most wisely, the so-called funny book. Now, Miss Bagnold is genuinely amusing, and will make you laugh, but her humour is never studied or deliberate. The humour is inherent in the characters, their sayings and their actions just as there is real humour in children which arouses loving laughter. The dialogue is one of the most noteworthy features of a book in which everything is noteworthy.

* * * *

Gloria Snowstorm always wanted to go on the films. Through an oversight of her employer she is married to Jerry Burke, star of a thousand talkies. Jerry originally intended to marry another lady for the purpose of publicity; but in Miss Snowstorm he finds his ideal. Shadrach Green, the great producer, orders a publicity divorce; but the lovers refuse. He compromises with a publicity baby, which, in the interests of Miss Snowstorm's figure, must be an adopted one. Jerry, however, has other plans. By a trick Shadrach is sent off on a cruise to the South Seas, and when he returns Master Burke is the toast of the town. The story ends happily. From this book one gains an insight into the ways of great producers, and the studio scenes are well described.

Monkey's Money. By Mabel L. Tyrrell. Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

Behind the Evidence. By Leonard Blackledge. Hutchinson. 7/6 net.

The Cornish Coast Murder. By John Bude. Skeffington. 7/6 net.

Sweet Peril. By Jennifer Ames. Hodder and Stoughton. 3/6 net.

"MONKEY'S Money" is a well-built and shapely novel, with a good story and a certain substantial quality—although it is not heavy—which makes it a book to keep and read again. Robert-Marie Darby is the son of an ineffectual Englishman and a French mother, whose love for her French estate upon which the family live expresses itself in a passionate determination to preserve it at all costs for a worthy heir. It is, however, not Robert, but her second son, Pierre, who possesses his mother's qualities, and a family crisis at the outbreak of the Great War reveals that Pierre is the son of another father. Robert finds himself a man without a country, since Darby has omitted to take the proper steps to secure his British citizenship; but he makes his way to England, where he works and marries. The old family clash in temperament repeats itself between him and his son, but in the end we leave him with the last ties with his family broken and happiness awaiting him at last. Not the least interesting feature of the book is its balance between the French and the English elements of the story, and its study of the household of Saint-Quentin-les-Champs.

What lies "Behind the Evidence" in the Summerfield poisoning case? It is, to all appearance, a very ordinary story of sordid suburban passion and murder, but behind it lies a story uglier still. Here is not a detective puzzle, but a very forceful study of real types. Lady Summerfield is a character of a new kind, drawn with a sureness of touch which makes her credible even when the story approaches, as it sometimes does, the limits of what the reader is prepared to accept. The motive for the deed is somewhat too slight; some of the proceedings at the trial will be suspect to a public which has learned something about such matters, and there is an occasional weakness in style. "Behind the Evidence" however, is a book of a new kind, and one that will grip its readers.

"The Reverend Dodd stood at the window." These are the unhappy opening words of "The Cornish Coast Murder," and it must be said that from the first we were no less interested in detecting Mr. Bude's solecisms, and strange grammar and individual punctuation, than in detecting the murderer of Julius Tregarthen. The puzzle itself is not without merits, but we cannot recommend the book to anyone who likes a little good English with his murders.

"Sweet Peril" is sweet, sentimental, bright, and well told—it is, in fact, everything that a romance by so popular a writer as Miss Jennifer Ames ought to be.

We Have Come to a Country. By Lettice Cooper. Gollancz. 7/6 net.

AN occupational centre for unemployed workmen is the background of Miss Lettice Cooper's charming and human story. The Ladies' Committee is dominated by Mrs. Buck, who is the perfect type of notoriety and publicity hunter of the moment, who will go anywhere or do anything so long as she can get into prominence. The superintendent of the centre, a young man named Foss, had no experience for the work, having been an ex-officer and lap-dog for an elderly lady. But they are only the more prominent of a carefully studied and excellently presented gallery of portraits. Here is, for instance, the morose Communist, who dreams of a world where all he hates with such fervour will have ceased to be; and there is also a very cheerful type of rascal who thinks the Centre exists for gambling. One of Hitler's professorial outcasts is the unwitting cause of the scandal that sent Mrs. Buck to new grounds of effort; this time to a Baby Centre, where there will be no "back chat" to disturb her calm. The professor aroused the Communist's pride in craftsmanship, and when that pride is demeaned by Foss a hammer fells the superintendent just when the representative of a Sunday newspaper is investigating the Centre. The "story" smashes the committee, and the Centre is left to be conducted by the men themselves. "The men are so very tolerant," is the comment of one of the characters; and Miss Cooper's satire is also very tolerant. But she has written a delightful novel which will be widely and deservedly read.

Many Roads to Heaven. By Deirdre O'Brien. Mills and Boon. 7/6 net.

The Ghost Wife. By Jean Devanny. Duckworth. 7/6 net.

PAMELA SHERLEY, young, dazzling and romantic, dreams of the lover who shall be hero, as well as tall and dark and handsome. He did not come while she was in her 'teens. But from girlhood she has been worshipped with the true, if not very exciting, adoration of the quiet, unassuming and rich Charles Featherstone—a person whom mothers would regard as an eminently eligible match. Pamela's mother—easy-going but likeable "muddler" to her modern family—is one of Miss O'Brien's most successful creations. In the end Featherstone's husky-voiced confession of love is accepted by Pamela in an identical declaration made with "her eyes starry, her smile a thing of haunting beauty," and she reaches her heaven. Miss O'Brien tells her story with all the competence of a popular and skilled author.

* * * *

Whether or not the dead can retain contact with the living, the memory of one who has passed out of this life often exerts an extraordinary influence on those who remain. This is the theme of Miss Devanny's skilfully written novel. The spirit of the first wife dominates in a most uncanny fashion. Miss Devanny avoids the pitfall of sentimentalism, and depicts convincingly the position of a young step-mother in regard to a husband who is for ever guarding the past he lived with her predecessor, and to his more than ordinarily difficult children.

An Emperor Dies

The End of a Habsburg

Phantom Crown. By Bertita Harding. London: Harrap. 10s. 6d. net.

EIGHT years ago died a sad woman—Carlota, daughter of Leopold of Belgium, and widow of the Archduke Maximilian of Austria, once Emperor of Mexico. Her story now is told in a full-length biography of the tragic couple.

The writer has chosen the style of a novelist. She makes every sentence dramatic. Her tale mounts to the piteous time when Maximilian stood his ground in Mexico, deserted by his allies, while Carlota, a frantic woman striving for her husband's safety, stormed in the Vatican for help. It was difficult to get the unhappy creature to leave the Vatican precincts, where she dreaded to taste food lest her enemies had poisoned it; and, meanwhile, the sands were running out and the Emperor's fate drew near.

Signal for the Execution

Defeat, defeat at the hand of rebels—that sealed his destiny. "In distant grey adobe huts the murky fires burned low. A cloud of smudge spread upward against the dawn." Could the blockade be broken? Could the Emperor's person escape? Hardly. "Maximilian was unaccountably thrilled. 'Now for a lucky bullet.'" There was no lucky bullet. Firing ceased, and a martial figure approached. "I am General Echegaray, and Your Majesty is—er—my prisoner." So did a Habsburg pass into the hands of rebels. On thirteen counts he was indicted, and he was condemned to death by a casting vote.

There were cruel delays. "Tomás," said Maximilian to one who was to die with him, "is that the signal for the execution?"—"I cannot say, sire; this is the first time I am being executed." It was June 19, 1867—and a sad woman carried the memory of all those horrors until yesterday, widowed and mad.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES TRIBUNAL.

Notice is hereby given that a Tribunal has been appointed to inquire into the following matters and to report thereon and make recommendations in respect thereof to the Minister for Agriculture, viz.:—

(a) The grading, packing and marking of fruit and vegetables by the producers thereof;
(b) the facilities provided by local authorities, or otherwise afforded, for the marketing of fruit and vegetables, and the conditions under which those commodities are sold;
(c) whether the conditions under which fruit and vegetables are prepared for market, and are subsequently marketed, are such as to affect adversely the returns obtained by the producers of those commodities;
(d) whether the sale of imported fruit and vegetables should be prohibited unless sold in packages or other containers marked "imported"; and
(e) the steps, if any, which should be taken—
(i.) to require producers to grade, pack and mark their fruit and vegetables in a manner to be prescribed by law;
(ii.) to provide marketing facilities which will secure to the producer an equitable return for fruit and vegetables, either by regulation of existing markets or by the provision and subsequent regulation of new markets or by a system of direct dealing between producers and consumers, whether individually or collectively; and
(iii.) to require that the sale, whether by wholesale or retail, of imported fruits and vegetables of specified kinds should be prohibited unless the packages or other containers thereof are marked "imported."

Persons, or associations, who desire to tender evidence bearing on any of the above-mentioned aspects of the inquiry are invited to communicate with The Secretary, Fruit and Vegetables Tribunal, 35 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. W.H.Co.

The Irish Times.

SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1935.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

In the course of his Faraday lecture on "Electricity in the Life of To-day," Professor E. W. Marchant in Dublin yesterday cited, as an instance of the use of electricity in furthering communication, the fact that the Irish Times on Thursday had been able to speak by means of the radio-telephone to the Lord Mayor of Dublin while he was coming home on board the liner Olympic.—(Page 6.)

The Dail yesterday adjourned until May 1 for the Easter recess.—(Page 10.)

The local man, John Mullins, charged in connection with the burning of Birr Catholic Church, was yesterday returned for trial.—(Page 10.)

In his address to the meeting of the County Down Unionist Associations in Belfast yesterday, Viscount Craigavon defended the present financial relations with Great Britain, and contended that they were advantageous to Northern Ireland.—(Page 10.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Lieutenant-General the Earl of Dundonald, who devised the smoke-screen as a protective device for shipping during the Great War, and who had served with marked distinction in Egypt and in South Africa, died in London yesterday, aged 82. —(Page 10.)

ABROAD

That Baron von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, had informed the British Ambassador in Berlin that Germany was ready to enter an Eastern Pact of non-aggression, was revealed by Sir John Simon at the meeting of the Stresa Conference yesterday.—(Page 9.)

The Graf Zeppelin was damaged when she crashed into a house while trying to tie-up in Brazil yesterday, the envelope being ripped and two engines struck. Nine were killed in 'plane crashes yesterday.—(Page 9.)

SPORTING

At Lingfield yesterday Easton won the Lingfield Park Spring Stakes.—(Page 12.)

At Worcester yesterday Sea Pride won the Pitchcroft Plate.—(Page 12.)

At Bogside Rossall won the Irvine Town Plate.—(Page 13.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were firm and featureless. Some Industrials improved. —(Page 14.)

Silver made another big jump and closed at 31 5-16d. per oz. Gold also improved to 144s. 1d. per oz. The Treasury Bill rate was the same as last week.—(Page 14.)

Germany and Stresa

In the idyllic surroundings of Isola Bella, on Lake Maggiore, the leading statesmen of Italy, France and Britain are taking counsel together. Possibly the most remarkable feature of this conference is the extraordinary care that is being taken by the Italian authorities to protect the visitors. One of the disadvantages of life in a country that is governed by a Dictator is the fact that politicians live under a constant threat of assassination. When M. Laval went for a short walk at Stresa on Thursday he was followed immediately by no fewer than twenty detectives, and reports from the spot state that no unauthorised person is allowed within range of the delegates. Hitherto the conference has been dominated by Signor Mussolini, who, in pursuit of his declared policy of realism, has been treating MM. Flandin and Ramsay Macdonald to a detailed exposé of his views on European affairs. The Duce, particularly when he is on his native heath—albeit hedged about by Fascist detectives—adopts the attitude that "I am Sir Oracle, and when I ope my lips, let no dog bark." From the outset he has been entirely cynical in regard to the Stresa Conference. He has given his visitors to understand that, whatever they may think about the European situation, Italy proposes to rely upon her strong arm. She has about 600,000 well-equipped soldiers. Her Air Force, which has been giving demonstrations above Lake Maggiore, is one of the finest of its kind in the world; and Signor Mussolini contends that the best guarantee of peace, so far as Italy is concerned, is a defence force that will be able to meet all-comers. The Duce, in his own newspaper, welcomed the visiting statesmen with an article that left no doubt as to his attitude. Italy has definite aims in foreign policy. One of them is the continued independence of Austria—or, rather, her domination by Italy instead of by Germany; and, if that aim is fulfilled, Signor Mussolini does not care very much what happens elsewhere.

Among the matters to be discussed at Stresa was the problem of an Eastern Pact, on the lines of the Locarno agreement, which also, strangely enough, was signed on the shores of Lake Maggiore. When Sir John Simon and Mr. Anthony Eden visited Berlin recently, this proposal proved to be the principal stumbling block in the path of an agreement with the Nazi Government. Herr Hitler, who, like Signor Mussolini, does not mince his words, refused point blank to be a party to an Eastern Pact either of non-aggression or of mutual assistance, on the ground that Nazi Germany would have nothing whatever to do with either Soviet Russia or Lithuania. Yesterday, however, there was a dramatic change in the situation. It seems that Baron von Neurath, the German Minister for Foreign Affairs, sent for the British Chargé d'Affaires during the morning, and made a statement which immediately was sent to Sir John Simon at Stresa. When the Conference assembled at Isola Bella in the afternoon, the Foreign Secretary was able to inform his colleagues that Germany was ready to adhere to an Eastern Pact of non-aggression, even if certain of its signatories should decide among themselves to enter into contracts of mutual assistance. In other words, even if France and Russia should conclude a military alliance, the German Government will be prepared to sign a general pact, on the model of Locarno, promising to refrain from aggressive action against any of the other signatories. If this undertaking can be accepted at its face value, it represents an enormous advance towards European peace. In Berlin Herr Hitler told Sir John Simon that an Eastern Pact would be both "objectionable and dangerous." His whole attitude gave the British Ministers to understand that Germany must preserve complete freedom of action in the East—in short, that she must be free to attack Russia or Lithuania at her own discretion; and his complete volte face now must be regarded as the most hopeful event of the last two years.

The issue at all these conferences has been essentially simple. It has been merely the choice between collective security in one form or another, and individual armament—in a word, between peace and war. So long as Germany refused to enter into a multi-lateral pact, guaranteeing the maintenance of peace in Eastern Europe, war, at an earlier or a later date, seemed to be inevitable. France and Italy already had arranged to bring Germany's case before the League of Nations. It was reported only yesterday that they would accept German re-armament as an accomplished fact—having no other reasonable alternative—but in the event of a further breach of the Versailles Treaty, they would take steps to bring "sanctions" into force. With Russia, Italy and France in agreement—even without the help of Great Britain—Germany's "encirclement" probably would have been achieved in a few weeks after Stresa; but now the whole position has changed. If Herr Hitler really means to adhere to an Eastern Pact, there surely can be no further point in the arraignment of Germany before the League of Nations. Everybody concerned has known from the beginning that such a step only can result in the hardening of German opinion against the rest of Europe, and, consequently, in the encouragement of the aggressive element in Herr Hitler's following. The League of Nations cannot prevent Germany's re-armament. It only can exacerbate German feeling; and, therefore, the proposal to make an indictment of the German Government at Geneva in any circumstances would be ill-advised. We presume that Herr Hitler's change of front in respect of the Eastern Pact will result in the abandonment of the Geneva plan. There seems to be a chance now to secure Germany's co-operation in a general scheme of European security. Nothing ought to be allowed to stand in its way. If Germany can be persuaded to join with the other Powers in an effort to keep the peace, war may be postponed indefinitely. If she is snubbed, or left to her own devices, the outbreak of another conflict will be merely a matter of time.

The Information Bureau

We print to-day yet another instance of exasperating conduct on the part of the Free State Government's Information Bureau. On February 22nd last this newspaper announced that certain well-known members of the Junior Bar would be called to the Inner Bar at the end of the present term. The report was denied immediately by the Government Information Bureau, but was proved true yesterday, when the Chief Justice called four out of the six gentlemen in question to the Inner Bar. A similar case occurred last October, when this newspaper announced the Government's intention to prohibit the importation of motor cars into the Free State; and the news, instantly condemned by the Bureau as "unauthorised, inaccurate and misleading," was followed within three weeks by a Government Order following the precise lines of our forecast. In these circumstances, we are justified in asking what is the real function of the Information Bureau. According to the official statement that accompanied its establishment, its purpose is to supply "accurate information concerning the work of special departments to the home and foreign Press and to Saorstát representatives abroad," and to correct "mis-statements which appear likely to injure the credit or prestige of the country, or otherwise to react unfavourably on national interests." The document closes with a pious hope that the "new Bureau will be able to render valuable assistance to newspapers, and to ensure that the people are fully and accurately informed." The accuracy of its information, and its definition of "mis-statements," can be deduced from the two examples which we have given. Denials of this sort, however, might be regarded merely as occasional lapses, calling for some indulgence, if it were not that the Bureau has followed consistently a policy of concealment, rather than of information, in regard to affairs of State. So far as we can recollect, it has published nothing of real importance that one or other of the daily newspapers has not revealed before it—two cases in point were the coal-cattle pact with England and the trade agreement with Germany, both of which were announced with accuracy and fulness by this newspaper before the Information Bureau deigned to utter a word about them. Is it surprising that the institution already has acquired the popular nickname of the "No Information Bureau"? Furthermore, is it surprising that the utterances of the Bureau are wont to be taken with a grain of salt, or that the Irish newspapers, when told by the Bureau that there is "no foundation for a rumour," prosecute their inquiries into it with unabated energy? Such a condition of things is no credit to the Government which created it. If, as we assume, the Bureau takes its instructions on what to say and what to deny from the Government, then it is high time that a subtler, more effective—and, we might add, more honourable—technique should be evolved.

"Step-by-Step"

It is hardly unreasonable to predict that the Northern Government will be compelled in the near future to abandon its "step-by-step with Britain" policy. In some matters, indeed, it has abandoned that policy already. Motorists in the North are complaining that their cars involve a considerably higher degree of taxation than the cars of Great Britain. In the first place, the Northern driver must pay a penny a gallon more for his petrol than the British driver. In the second place, whereas the British tax on motor cars was reduced last year from £1 per horse power to 15s., no such reduction was made in Northern Ireland, so that the Northern motorist must pay 5s. per horse power more than the British car-owner. A deputation from the local branches of the Royal Automobile Club and the Automobile Association has visited the Minister of Finance, and has furnished him with several cogent arguments in favour of a reduction of the tax to the British level. In the last thirteen years, it observes, the number of private motor cars in the North has increased by over 70 per cent., and the Government's revenue from all classes of motor vehicles has risen from some £130,000 to more than half a million. The increase, it urges, would be even more rapid under a lower scale of taxation, as Great Britain has discovered in the past year, and any possibility of loss to the Exchequer would be more than counterbalanced by an increase in purchases of cars and by an increase in the number of licences. It adds that motor taxation in Northern Ireland is higher than in any other country where motor cars are used extensively, and that the State's practice in this regard has been based always hitherto on the British practice. We think that the Northern drivers have a sound case, and wish them luck with it. Similar arguments might be advanced in the Free State, where the motorist's burden, as a result of the Government's fiscal policy, is even heavier.

Origins

Few things are so entertaining, and almost none so profitless, as attempts to track down common words and expressions to their lair. Controversy as to the origin of "O.K." still continues unabated, though it must be years since it was started, and a Past Master of the Worshipful Company of Haberdashers has just advanced a daring theory about the name of his own profession which is likely to set the hunters off in full cry again. According to him, drapers in the old days would attract the passers-by to their shops with loud appeals to be better dressed and to cut a dash, and the latter expression, in its form, "have a dash, sir!" became in time a description for the trade itself. It is but seldom, however, that there is any explanation whatever of our commonest phrases, and, indeed, it may be just as well that we do not seek for one. If we pause to consider the subject of beer—to choose only one example out of many—we plunge ourselves at once into mysteries to which there seems to be no solution. Whence came all those perplexing terms with which the more enthusiastic of its devotees are labelled, and why should they be described as "half-seas-over," "canned," "cock-eyed," or even "elephants"? In dealing with this particular subject, the student will find only one glimmer of light, which was supplied by a correspondent to The Times a few days ago. It is true that he was concerned with the historical rather than with the philological aspects of beer, but his revelation that the ancient Israelites were heavy drinkers leads, incidentally, to a very interesting discovery. "Machmetzeth," "Shear," and "Schikur" are descriptions that died with the Israelites, but it appears that they also called it "Booza," so at least we know where one term had its origin.

COURT AND PERSONAL

The Prince of Wales has promised to attend the Yorkshire Agricultural Show, which will be held at Coal Aston, Sheffield, in the summer. The Prince's visit to the Channel Islands is provisionally fixed for July, and His Royal Highness will make the journey by air. The Lieutenant-Governors of the various islands will receive His Royal Highness, who will be the guest of General Broadbent at Guernsey.

GERMANY'S DRAMATIC DECISION

READY TO PARTICIPATE IN EASTERN PACT

GREAT THINGS NOW MAY EMERGE FROM STRESA

ATMOSPHERE OF CONFERENCE ALTERED

GERMANY seems to have taken an important step forward in regard to the much-discussed Eastern Pact, on which France and Soviet Russia are so keen, says Reuter.

She is ready, Sir John Simon revealed to yesterday's resumed three-Power conference at Stresa, to participate in an Eastern Pact of non-aggression, even if certain signatories also contract undertakings of mutual assistance recorded in a separate document.

This intimation was conveyed to the British Ambassador in Berlin by Baron von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister.

Sir John Simon's announcement created a sensation, and has completely altered the whole atmosphere of the conference. It is now hoped that great things will emerge from Stresa.

FRENCH APPEAL TO LEAGUE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

STRESA, Friday.

Another point of to-day's morning and afternoon sessions was an agreement with regard to the French appeal to the League and the type of resolution to be adopted.

It is felt that the ultimate League resolution should provide for a close study by the League of methods for preventing further unilateral treaty denunciations. There has been no agreement on sanctions.

AUSTRIA

France and Italy will now prepare a draft pact for the guarantee of Austria's independence. It will be recalled that Chancellor Hitler has made it clear that he is willing to examine such a pact if it can be drafted, but he expressed the view that its drafting would prove extremely difficult.

It has been agreed that there shall be a considerable further study of the proposed western air pact, with special reference to the situation of Britain and Italy. Ultimately it is expected that a conference of all the Powers concerned will prove necessary.

The morning session was devoted to a detailed discussion of unilateral repudiation of treaty obligations. This discussion was of a general nature, and it is understood that it did not centre round any specific reference to Germany.

The British inquiry in Berlin was instituted following yesterday's session, when Sir John Simon reported on the result of the recent series of British visits.

It will be recalled that Sir John Simon told the House of Commons that Herr Hitler, while prepared to enter an eastern pact of non-aggression, but not one of mutual assistance, had said he regarded the mutual assistance pact as both "dangerous and objectionable."

A report in a similar sense was conveyed to Italy and France yesterday, and these countries inquired whether this was to be construed as implying that Herr Hitler would not agree to enter any eastern pact if it provided for mutual assistance. It was to clear up this point that the query was sent to Berlin last night.

The Austrian pact is not expected to give much trouble at this stage. Great Britain has already made it clear that she considers herself among the Powers to consult together in the event of any threat to Austrian independence. Moreover, no new commitments to Great Britain are involved.

HOW GERMAN OFFER WAS MADE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

It was confirmed here this evening that Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister to-day received the British Chargé d'Affaires, and made a communication to him which has already been reported by Sir John Simon in Stresa.

This information was immediately telegraphed to the British delegation at Stresa. The German Foreign Office stated that it was for the present unable to add anything to Sir John Simon's statement, and that the German communiqué was not to be expected until to-morrow.

The first impression in diplomatic circles generally is that an important step towards the organisation of European peace has been taken to-day.

LORD CRAIGAVON ON PARTITION

REPLY TO PRESIDENT DE VALERA

Addressing a meeting of the County Down Unionist Associations in Belfast yesterday, Viscount Craigavon mentioned President de Valera's recent reference to partition. He said that he had been asked to say a word, and only a word, on a subject that Mr. de Valera mentioned last Tuesday. This was the word he had to say. Mr. de Valera stated that partition was created by the British Government, and if the British Government wanted to get rid of partition to-morrow it could do so.

My answer to that, said Lord Craigavon, is this: "Some British Governments might possibly—I say might possibly—possess the power to kick us out of Great Britain, but they could never kick us out of the Empire into the Free State, or into a Southern Republic; nor would the great-hearted British people ever stand that."

CALLS TO THE INNER BAR

A DENIAL AND THE SEQUEL

On the 22nd February last the Irish Times published a report giving the names of well-known members of the Junior Bar in the Free State who, it stated, would be called to the Inner Bar at the end of the present term. They were Messrs. T. C. Kingsmill Moore, James Cawley, Thomas Paul McCarthy, R. Brereton Barry and Patrick Joseph Roe.

On the next day the following paragraph was published in the Irish Times at the request of the Government Information Bureau:—

"The report in yesterday morning's newspaper that certain members of the Junior Bar would be called to the Inner Bar at the end of the Legal Term was denied by the Government Information Bureau last evening. It was stated that calls to the Inner Bar are a matter for decision by the Executive Council, and that no decision in the matter had recently been taken or considered."

DEAD MEAT SMUGGLING

RUMOURS IN LONDONDERRY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDONDERRY, Friday.

There are sensational reports in circulation in Londonderry of extensive smuggling of dead meat bought in Donegal and brought into the city.

The means of transport is usually by motor car after the Northern Customs posts have closed for the evening at five o'clock. This goes on almost openly, in spite of Customs and police vigilance.

WALLET OF MONEY IN THE SEA

UNUSUAL INCIDENT AT COBH

As the United States liner Manhattan was about to leave Cobh last night for New York a passenger on the upper deck was heard to shout repeatedly: "Bag overboard; send boat," to the tender below.

Later it was ascertained that in leaning over the ship's rail watching the tender depart, his wallet, containing a large sum of money, had slipped overboard.

Upon learning of the incident, Commodore C. B. Randells stopped the liner, and the pilot's cutter rowed hurriedly towards the liner, and fortunately found the wallet floating near the vessel.

"Keep fifty dollars and drink my health," said the delighted passenger to the cutter's crew when informed that they had been successful in their search.

U.S. TRAIN CUTS 'BUS IN TWO

FOURTEEN CHILDREN KILLED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROCKVILLE (MARYLAND), Friday.

Fourteen children were killed and five seriously injured when their 'bus was sliced in two by a train at a level crossing.

The children were hurled into a neighbouring cemetery by the force of the impact.

NINE AIR DEATHS

'PLANES COLLIDE NEAR PRAGUE

ACCIDENT TO GRAF ZEPPELIN

THE pilot and two of the crew of a French naval two-engined seaplane were killed when the machine, caught in a violent westerly gale, crashed in a field near Lesparre, in the Gironde Department, yesterday.

Of the other three members of the crew two are gravely injured and have been taken to hospital in Bordeaux. The third, a youth who joined up three weeks ago, escaped with an injury to his arm.

Tossed like a plaything by the storm, the machine crashed before the crew had time to take to their parachutes.

The two pilots and two mechanics were killed yesterday as the result of a mid-air collision at a height of 1,000 feet at Vinor, East Prague.

The pilot of a military machine was instantly killed in a crash yesterday in South Zeeland (says a Copenhagen message).

Flight-Lieutenant Dudding, of Overhill, Warlingham, Surrey, piloting an aeroplane at Malmesbury, Wilts, last night, was killed when the machine crashed as it was about to land. His passenger, Mr. P. C. Pitt, of Broadlands, Warlingham, the owner of the machine, escaped unharmed.

Witnesses stated that the 'plane touched the top of a tree, and then crashed into a hill at the edge of a field.

AIRSHIP KNOCKS DOWN HOUSE

THRILLING BRAZIL EXPERIENCE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PERNAMBUCO, Friday.

The Graf Zeppelin, veteran German airship with innumerable trans-Atlantic flights to its credit, crashed into a house while trying to tie up to the mooring mast here early to-day.

In driving rain the dirigible arrived at Pernambuco, after the 1,200 miles journey northward from Rio de Janeiro. For over three hours the drone of her engines could be heard as she cruised over the sleeping city, and then she pointed her nose towards the mooring mast.

Bad visibility, combined with the weight of rain on the envelope, brought her too low to meet the mast-head, and the commander swung her round to try and get fresh height before making a second attempt.

The dirigible was describing a wide turn when a gust of wind sent her nose down over a group of small houses, and the under-part of the ship tore through the walls of one house.

Occupants of the house and neighbouring dwellings, roused from their sleep, rushed out in their night clothes and fled, screaming with terror, from beneath the huge shadowy form of the airship.

It was not until over an hour and a-half later that the Zeppelin succeeded in making fast to the mooring. There were several gaping holes in the under-part of the envelope, and the side and rear engines were damaged.

KILLED IN "HOLY WAR"

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER

TROOPS ENGAGE 900 TRIBESMEN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW DELHI, Friday.

FIERCE fighting on the North-West Frontier, due to tribesmen estimated to have been 900 strong, led by the Fakir of Alingar, who is attempting to start a "holy war," has led to the tragic death of the political agent in Malakand State, Mr. L. W. H. D. Best, and the wounding of a number of levies.

At least eighteen tribesmen are reported to have been killed.

The trouble started when the troops of the Fakir filtered across the Swat River into the Agra salient of the frontier by means of improvised bridges and goat-skin rafts.

Hostilities, which began on the night of April 5th by a determined attack on British forces near Bargolai, culminated yesterday in a pitched battle near Loe Agra.

According to the latest news from Malakand, the Nowshera column, under the command of Brigadier-General H. R. L. C. Alexander, advanced yesterday from Bargolai, their point of concentration, in co-operation with the R.A.F.

The column occupied Loe Agra the same day after a stubborn resistance, in which Mr. Best was killed.

ALDERMAN BYRNE IN SOUTHAMPTON

BELIEVES LOST REGALIA WILL BE RETURNED

Alderman Byrne, Lord Mayor of Dublin, who arrived at Southampton last night in the Cunard-White Star liner Olympic after a five weeks' tour of America and Canada, told a reporter of the loss of his regalia.

"I mislaid the regalia at Washington," he said. "Nobody else is to blame, but I feel confident that when it is found, and the finder realises what it is, I shall get it returned. It is not of great intrinsic value, but sentimentally it is priceless."

He said the tour had been strenuous, and it had been necessary for him and his party to have sleeping coaches on the trains in order to get a little rest between the many functions they had to attend.

During his stay Alderman Byrne made a close inspection of housing schemes. He said that it was a sad sight to look out of the train windows and see so many derelict factories.

"America," he added, "is passing through very bad times."

THE BRITISH SURPLUS

Mr. L. S. Amery, M.P., presiding at the annual meeting of Birmingham University Association in Birmingham last night, read a letter from Mr. Neville Chamberlain, which opened: "I am up to my eyes in my surplus, and simply don't know what to do with it."

MACHINE-GUN ESCORT

MURDER CHARGE AT LONGFORD

STRONGLY GUARDED COURTHOUSE

PRISONERS' PROTEST BEFORE REMAND

A HEAVILY armed escort, equipped with a Thompson machine-gun, accompanied the covered lorry in which the four men, charged in connection with the Edgeworthstown shooting, were conveyed from Mountjoy Prison, Dublin, to Longford, yesterday. Cars containing armed detectives followed the lorry.

In Longford about fifty police were gathered in the precincts of the courthouse, while armed sentries were posted at various points within the building.

The accused men, who appeared before Mr. J. P. Kenny, District Justice, were John Shanley, Dromod, Co. Leitrim; James Joseph Reynolds, Currycramp, Dromod; John Reynolds, his twin brother, and William Mulligan, Longford. They were brought up on remand, charged with the murder of Mr. Richard More O'Ferrall, at Lisard, Edgeworthstown, on the night of February 9.

They were also charged with conspiracy, between December, 1934, and February, 1935, and with assaulting Mr. Gerald More O'Ferrall, father of Richard; with attempted wrongful arrest, and with terrorising others of the household.

ADJOURNMENT ASKED

Mr. P. T. Delany (State Solicitor) said they had hoped to be able to proceed with the evidence that day, but having regard to its volume, and the seriousness of the matter, he found it impossible to go on without a proper plan, which was in course of preparation. He applied for an adjournment until Wednesday, April 24, when the evidence would begin, and go on continuously until completed.

It would be well, he said, that the accused, if they desired to be represented, should know the procedure to be adopted, and probably the Attorney-General would be fully represented.

MANY WITNESSES

Superintendent Finegan made a formal deposition, in which he said that there were a very considerable number of witnesses to be examined, and having regard to the character of the evidence and the nature of the case, it was essential that the matter be proceeded with according to the plan which was in process of formation. If the interests both of accused and State were to be considered an adjournment to April 24 was essential.

When the prisoners were asked if they had any questions to ask of the superintendent, one of them said: "There is a right being denied by the police. We are not allowed association with republican prisoners."

District Justice—I have nothing to do with that.

The Prisoner—It is the police here. The Governor of Mountjoy and his men were decent to us. We are claiming the right to-night, when we go back.

SARCASTIC REMARKS

The prisoners were remanded in custody to April 24th at eleven o'clock.

The prisoners made some sarcastic comments in reference to the remark of Superintendent Finegan as to the interests of the prisoners, and afterwards chatted and laughed among themselves.

As they were driven away they shouted "Up the Republic," and they were cheered by groups in the town.

SUMMER TIME

Summer time begins to-morrow morning, and all clocks must be put forward one hour. Readers will be well advised to avoid any possible confusion by putting forward their clocks and watches before going to bed to-night.

MOTOR TYRES AND TUBES

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL'S NEW ORDER

The following statement was issued by the Government Information Bureau yesterday evening:—

"The Executive Council, by an Order made to-day under the Emergency Imposition of Duties Act, 1932, imposed as on and from the 13th April, an excise duty of 7½ per cent. ad valorem on motor tyres and tubes manufactured in Saorstat Eireann."

There is at present a Customs duty of 33⅓ per cent. on imported tyres. The Dunlop Company have undertaken that their prices for tyres manufactured in Cork will not be more than 15 per cent. above the prevailing British prices, plus any Excise duty that may be imposed. In 1933 the Irish Free State imported tyres to the value of £157,096, which yielded £35,876 in Customs duties, whilst in 1934 the value of imported tyres was £177,775, yielding £58,148 in Customs duties.

HOME RULE FIGHT RECALLED

LORD HARTINGTON'S VIEWS

The Marquess of Hartington was the principal speaker at the Jubilee dinner of the Ulster Reform Club in Belfast last night, when there was a distinguished company, including Viscount Craigavon (Prime Minister of Northern Ireland).

The Marquess of Hartington recalled the fact that the club was opened by his great-uncle fifty years ago, and asked his hearers to think how right those old opponents of Home Rule had been. They heard in these days much of the fall of the old "die-hards," and of how, if Home Rule had been agreed to, Ireland's problems would have been settled years ago.

Nothing in the world was farther from the truth. Nothing would have satisfied Parnell, just as nothing now was going to satisfy Mr. de Valera. Had they surrendered to the first Home Rule Bill they would have found themselves when the world crisis came in a vastly weaker position than they actually occupied.

"Those men who fought that fight eventually lost," he said, "but history shows how right it was to fight." The fight had been worth fighting, and they had done something to save Ulster, Europe and the Empire. He confessed he saw a revival of those old days confronting them in the India Bill now before the British Commons. It was true that in many ways no true parallel could be drawn, but there were certainly lines of similarity.

STORM DIES IN THE DAIL

THE SUSPENDED MEMBERS RETURN

AERODROMES AND THE LITTLE YELLOW GOD

FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.

ON Thursday evening the Dail closed in the most magnificent confusion. Even the Speaker admitted that there seemed to have been some misunderstanding. Deputies Mulcahy, Coburn and O'Sullivan had been requested to leave the Chamber, and had done so. Alderman Kelly's voice was heard continually, though other deputies joined into his speeches in the most curious and unthinking fashion. Often one seemed to forget that Alderman Kelly had the ear of the House.

Yesterday the first half-hour of the session was occupied in straightening things out. First, the Chair, and then Deputy Dillon clarified the situation and Professor O'Sullivan also did his share. Nearly everyone wanted to know whether sub-head B could be discussed under item 54. Without the book of estimates it was difficult to follow this line of argument. In general, though, Opposition deputies wanted to know about the £1,500 which was being spent on busts, erected to the memory of men who died in 1916. Mr. Dillon thought it curious that none of the Irish Nationalists who came before 1916 were to be honoured. At a time like this we should forget our politics.

LOOKING AHEAD

Deputy Mulcahy, apparently unperturbed by his dismissal on the previous evening, wanted to know if the General Post Office matter was still open to discussion. The Chair tentatively suggested that he had better be careful. Mr. Flynn, too, gained a reproof for a reference to banners, processions and memorials.

No one seemed quite happy. It was difficult to get the discussion moving at all. Deputy Esmonde's intervention, therefore, was welcomed. "Let us pass from contemplation of the past to consideration of the future," said Deputy Esmonde. He began to talk about aerodromes. Within a few moments, however, a general discussion had developed on the matter of which sub-head had anything to do with aerodromes. Eventually some agreement was reached, and Deputy Esmonde proceeded to explain how all our aerodromes are relics of the British Empire, now defunct in this country. They are inaccessible, and, in many cases, half-ruined. He thought no money should be voted for these wrecks. Relief work might be found by building new aerodromes.

A £10 IMPROVEMENT

Deputy Esmonde is really most refreshing. At the end of his speech he referred to the £10 vote for improvements to the entrance of Leinster House. In his opinion the Government regarded Leinster House as "the green eye of the little yellow god." They did not like to touch it, for fear that it would revenge itself on them. A charming fantasy, which might well have a deep significance. Never forget the surprise Macbeth got in the matter of Burnham Wood.

Deputies Belton and Corry followed up the aerodrome theme. Deputy Belton thought one should be built on Portmarnock Strand, and Deputy Corry said the only useful place for an aerodrome was at Cobh. Deputy Corry is a Cork man.

At 2 p.m. the House adjourned until the 1st May.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE BUDGET PROSPECTS

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—If Mr. Chamberlain could count on no better revenue in 1935-36 than in 1934-35, and if expenditure were also unaltered, then he would be able to Budget for a surplus, after allowing for the Statutory sinking funds of rather over £12,000,000, and the question to decide is how far this figure will be increased by fresh revenue, or diminished by fresh liabilities. On the revenue side of the account, direct taxation is likely to bring in substantially more. The probability that the resilience of the income tax last year was due to prompter payments of the tax does not discount the prospect of a higher total yield in 1935-36, because assessable company returns have enormously improved. In the second place, the yield of the death duties, though as uncertain as the duration of life, is, in fact, based upon the assumption that no enormous estates will be assessable. That is why the Ellerman estate in 1933-34 caused the receipts to exceed the estimates by many millions. But the normal yield varies with the value of securities and of property, and in the absence of political upheavals and of international anxieties, the raw material of the tax should remain good. As for stamps, speculative activities have recently received a series of severe shocks, and the number of new issues has not realised expectations. That is why the yield of this tax last year was so disappointing.

One cause of depression—namely, wild rumours of a general election, and of an early Socialist victory, has been removed, and all that is required for a bttter year is some sign of real international appeasement, both political and financial. It is clear that estimates which depend so much upon the future course of events must be very difficult to frame, but a Chancellor of the Exchtquer is perfectly justified in making up his accounts upon the assumption that there will be no sudden and enormously expensive emergencies, and upon this assumption it may be thought legitimate to anticipate an additional revenue from direct taxation of some £20,000,000. The yield of the indirect taxes is likely to be maintained, but not much improved. Some possible changes, such as a levy on imported meat, will be earmarked for subsidy purposes, and others, such as the iron and steel duties, are designed to give protection rather than to raise revenue.

AMERICAN ACQUITTED

SPENT MONTHS IN GERMAN JAIL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

A court, composed of Reichswehr and naval officers and two civil judges, to-day acquitted the American, Roederer, on a charge of "spying," which was preferred against him by the Public Prosecutor on the testimony of the Munich police.

Roederer was arrested near the Swiss-German frontier last June. The court quashed the warrant for his arrest, and decided that the State must pay the cost of the trial.

The United States Consul was present during the proceedings.

NO SETTLEMENT IN VIEW

TRAMWAY STRIKE UNCHANGED

COMPANY'S LETTER TO SPEAKER

TRADES COUNCIL'S DECISION

THE Dublin United Tramways Company directors have been unable to see their way to alter their decision not to participate in negotiations with the men's representatives, except there is a resumption of work concurrent with the opening up of the negotiations.

Yesterday morning the directors met to consider their reply to Mr. Frank Fahy's second letter, in which he stressed the fact that his invitation to the parties to meet in conference had been an open invitation, with no reservations or stipulations which might raise difficulties.

After the directors' meeting Dr. Lombard Murphy called upon Mr. Fahy at Leinster House. The directors' reply to the Speaker's letter was issued for publication later in the afternoon.

Representatives of the Unions were also present at Leinster House during the day, but their presence, it is understood, had no special significance, and for the moment hopes of a round-table conference have been abandoned.

COMPANY'S LETTER

The company's letter to Mr. Fahy was as follows:—

Your letter of yesterday—delivered by hand at a late hour last night—has been laid before my directors to-day. They are sorry that it fails to recognise the prime consideration so plainly set out in my letter of yesterday.

The one and only obstacle to immediate negotiations is, and has been for weeks past, the persistent refusal by the unions to resume work if and when negotiations commence. No just reason—no reason at all—has been advanced for this refusal, which is clear cut and incapable of adjustment by negotiation.

The proposed meeting of the parties, leaving the vital preliminary condition unsettled, is not a new suggestion. It had already been put forward by the unions to the Ministry, and fully discussed by the Minister with the company. The Minister put forward proposals providing for resumption on conditions which he regarded as reasonable to both parties, but these were rejected by the unions.

As the company have already pointed out, they are satisfied that to enter into negotiations under duress, while the strike is maintained, is simply to open the door to the hold up of the transport of the city and district until the most extreme demands are granted.

UNION OFFICIAL'S COMMENT

The Strike Committee of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union held a three hours' meeting at 112 Marlborough street. Messrs. Sam Kyle, Area Secretary, and Dan Hillman, national officers, and other officials were in attendance.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Sam Kyle said that he had read the latest reply of the company to the Speaker's invitation. There was one paragraph in the letter which could only be regarded with astonishment, in view of what had taken place up to the present. It was the paragraph in which the secretary of the company had stated that "no just reason—no reason at all—had been advanced for the refusal" by the unions to resume work if and when negotiations commence.

"The men's reasons," said Mr. Kyle, "have been repeated again and again, and if the company was in genuine doubt as to these reasons, surely the way to find out why the men adopted this attitude was to attend the proposed conference and hear the statements of the unions' representatives."

Mr. Kyle went on to say that the company had urged a resumption of work, but that at no time since the dispute began had the company's representatives indicated on what terms they proposed that the men should resume.

Mr. Kyle added that he did not anticipate any further developments for the moment.

TRADE COUNCIL'S DECISION

After the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dublin Trade Union Council last night the following statement was issued by Mr. P. T. Daly, secretary:—

"At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the D.T.U.C., held at 44 Lower Gardiner street, the question of the tramways dispute was discussed at length. The members of the Executive Committee, taking the attitude of the directors of the company in holding that the men must resume work before negotiations as constituting a challenge to the workers, have decided to issue an appeal to their affiliated unions for contributions to supplement the dispute benefit which is being paid by the unions affected.

"The Executive also decided that the mass demonstration proposed by the Joint Strike Committee would be held on the Sunday following Easter."

ENTHRONEMENT OF BISHOP

CEREMONIES AT CASHEL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CASHEL, Friday.

The Right Rev. Dr. Thomas Harvey, the recently consecrated Bishop of the United Diocese of Cashel, Emly, Waterford and Lismore, was solemnly enthroned at Cashel Cathedral this afternoon in the presence of a large number of the diocesan clergy and laity. The clergy were robed in the Chapter House convenient to the Cathedral, which they entered in processional order. The procession was led by the Cathedral choir, followed by the diocesan clergy, the Cathedral Chapter, the Very Rev. J. R. Talbot, Dean of Cashel, and the Bishop and his chaplain. The Cathedral Service began with the processional hymn 430, after which the mandate was presented and read by the diocesan registrar, Dr. Ambrose. Having made the declaration of office, the Bishop was conducted by the Very Rev. Dean Talbot to the throne, where the ceremony of enthronement took place.

The enthronement sermon was preached by the Bishop, and the Service concluded with prayers for the diocese and the Bishop and the singing of Hymn 331. At the conclusion of the Service a reception was held in the Deanery, the residence of the Very Rev. Dean Talbot, the entire congregation being entertained.

The British colony in Paris intend to commemorate the King's Jubilee by subscribing to a silver jubilee fund for the Hertford British Hospital at Neuilly, of which the King and Queen are patrons.

Mr. John McInnes Macintosh Stewart, assistant lecturer in English at Leeds University, has been appointed to the Chair of English at Adelaide University.

MYSTERY SHIP STORY

ARMS SMUGGLING SUGGESTION

SOUTH CORK COAST RUMOURS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CLONAKILTY, Friday.

THE activities of what is described as a mystery ship off the South Cork coast within the past ten or twelve days continues to be the subject of rumour and speculation in this district. In official circles there is no indication as to the genuineness or otherwise of the rumours. The Civic Guards are reticent in regard to the matter.

It is suggested that a close watch is being kept on the southern section of the coast-line, but confirmation of this rumour also is lacking.

Inquiries made among residents along the sea coast elicited some interesting speculation.

One informant referred back to a night in or about April 1, and the suspicious manœuvres of a motor boat of the trawler type. This boat, it was thought, had been in touch with an ocean steamer, and succeeded in landing arms secretly at a sequestered pier called Coneycove, situated about two and a half miles from the town of Rosscarbery. The arms were said to have been taken inland.

It was pointed out that what was obviously an organised wholesale cutting of telegraph wires and the dislocation of communication in West Cork and other portions of the county took place about the same date.

The Civic Guards declined to make any comment on this explanation of the reason for the wire-cutting.

REDUCED ISSUE OF FREE BEEF

A TEMPORARY MEASURE

The Minister for Agriculture, in exercise of the powers conferred upon him under Section 46 of the Slaughter of Cattle and Sheep Act, 1934, has made amending regulations revising the weekly scale of beef for recipients in operation since the inception of the scheme. The regulations will come into operation on April 15, and all beef vouchers issued on and from that date will be allocated on the new scale. The old scale of allowance varied from 3lb. to 9lb. of beef per week. The new scale ranges from 2lb. to 6lb. per week.

It is the intention of the Minister that this reduction should be of a temporary nature. He proposes to introduce in the Dail, at an early date, an amending bill, one of the provisions of which will enable the scheme to be placed on a contributory basis; that is, the recipients would be expected to pay for the beef a small sum well within their means.

In other words, as the Minister announced on the second reading of the Slaughter of Cattle and Sheep Act, the free beef scheme would be replaced by a cheap beef scheme for necessitous persons. Under the new contributory arrangement the weekly allowance of beef would be restored to something approximating to the former scale.

PRE-TRUCE I.R.A. IN BELFAST

ASSOCIATION FORMED IN DUBLIN

Mr. Sean MacEntee (Free State Minister for Finance) and Senator Connolly (Minister for Lands) attended a meeting held in Dublin last night, at which it was decided to form a Dublin association of pre-truce members of the Irish Republican Army in Belfast. Mr. Denis McCullagh presided.

A committee was elected to draw up rules and regulations, and to define the objects of the Association.

The meeting was attended by over 100 persons, including men who were prominent in the activities of the Irish Republican Army in Belfast from 1918 to 1921.

Mr. MacEntee said that many people South of the border took it that the differences with the North were purely sectarian and religious. That, however, was not the position at all. He expressed the hope that one of the things that the Association would be able to show was that there was a deeper feeling than sectarian feeling behind the Nationalists of the North.

AQUITANIA NOT DAMAGED

NO CHANGE IN SAILING PLANS

The Aquitania has received no damage whatever as the result of her grounding at the entrance to Southampton Water on Wednesday.

This reassuring news was announced by the Cunard-White Star Company in Liverpool last night, after a careful inspection had been made of the liner internally and under the water.

Her sailings will be maintained as planned.

BELFAST MILK PRICES

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

Milk prices in the Belfast area will be reduced from May 12 next by 1d. per quart. The new retail prices will be:—Grade A, 1s. 10d. per gallon (minimum); Grade B, 1s. 8d. per gallon; Grade C, 1s. 6d. per gallon. These prices will apply until September 1, 1935.

NEW PEACE COMMISSIONER

Mr. Edward D. Bell, 24 Irishmaan road, Whitehall, has been appointed a Peace Commissioner for Co. Dublin. Mr. Bell is secretary to the St. George Public Utility Society, and is honorary secretary to the Corporation of Certified Secretaries (Dublin Centre).

A parliamentary general election will be held in Czechoslovakia on May 19th, although the life of the present Parliament should run until October.

VARIETY OF SUBJECTS DISCUSSED

DAIL OPENS ON LIVELY NOTE

THE SPEAKER KEPT BUSY

HOUSE ADJOURNS UNTIL MAY 1

IN the Dail yesterday, at the commencement of public business,

The SPEAKER said that some confusion had arisen on the previous day as a result of concentration on a particular item of the estimate for public works and buildings. In view of that, he was prepared to exercise leniency in allowing discussion on the sub-head which Deputy Mulcahy had moved should be reduced by £100. The matter discussed in connection with the G.P.O. memorial unveiling could not be discussed to-day.

Mr. MORRISSEY (U.I., Tipperary) said that the ruling of the Deputy Speaker on the previous night had been based on the specific statement of the Parliamentary Secretary (Mr. Hugo Flinn) that there was no money in the estimate for the matter to which Deputy Mulcahy was referring.

Mr. FLINN—I submit that there was nothing in the estimate to cover the actual matter discussed by General Mulcahy in regard to Easter Sunday.

The SPEAKER—That matter is closed, and the Parliamentary Secretary had better leave it so.

Mr. MULCAHY (U.I., Dublin, N.) said that, in connection with the £1,500 which was estimated in connection with the preparation of busts of Padraig Pearse and other national leaders for erection in Leinster House, he asked the Parliamentary Secretary one or two questions. He understood the Parliamentary Secretary to say that it was proposed to erect busts of Pearse, Arthur Griffith, Cathal Brugha, Austin Stack and Michael Collins.

Mr. FLINN—No statement was made as to where they would be erected.

Mr. MULCAHY continued that, in connection with the unveiling of these busts, would there be an Easter Week demonstration organised by the Government? Secondly, before public money was expended, had the explicit approval of the nearest representatives of the dead leaders been obtained for the preparation and the erection, at the State expense, of these busts?

TRIFLING WITH HOUSE

Mr. FLINN—On a point of order, I suggest that there is no money in this estimate for any purpose of the kind to which the deputy refers.

Mr. MULCAHY—There is £1,500.

The SPEAKER—The deputy is in order.

Professor O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry)—The Parliamentary Secretary is apparently trifling with the House.

Mr. FLINN—I have no function in answering this question.

Mr. MULCAHY—If the Government representative, asking the House to vote money in this particular way, is unable to answer questions, I suggest that the House should send for some person who has a function of that kind.

The SPEAKER—If the Parliamentary Secretary says he cannot answer that finishes it, but some Minister must be responsible.

Mr. FLINN—The Board of Works has no function in deciding whether there can be an Easter Week demonstration. That question has been raised again, and the intention is to keep raising it.

Mr. MULCAHY—There has been one very disagreeable incident in connection with a piece of work similar to that estimated for here. In connection with the expenditure of public money on another memorial, it has been surrounded by a certain type of party activity.

The SPEAKER intervened.

Mr. MULCAHY—The House is entitled to be told when it is asked to expend £1,500—and that is a provisional estimate—that the money is going to be expended in the general State interest, and that it is not going to be the centre of a party movement, and that it is not going to give offence to the relatives of the people whom it is proposed to commemorate.

"I think that it is very disappointing and disgraceful that the proposal would not be presented to this House in such a way as to enable it to be harmoniously and satisfactorily dealt with, instead of making it, as it will be if the Parliamentary Secretary continues on his present course, a matter of discord, dishonour and disgrace to the country."

PARTISANSHIP

Mr. DILLON (U.I., Donegal) said that he thought that they in Ireland were too much given to making commemorations of that kind the occasion for—possibly unconscious—partisanship. When he was told that the collection of statues to be provided under that sub-head was to contain no memorial to those who took part in the national struggle before 1916 he could not help asking himself if there had been no such thing as an Irish Nationalist prior to that year. He fully appreciated, however, the right of his colleagues that these men should be commemorated.

Referring to the meeting that had been held in Dublin to assist in the erection of a memorial to the late Joseph Devlin, Mr. Dillon said that the procedure adopted there was that leaders from the Government side of the House and representative Deputies from the Opposition, along with representatives of every shade of opinion in the country, had met to discuss the question.

Men who had worked for Ireland in the past, and who in some cases had made the supreme sacrifice on their behalf, were entitled to the respect and reverence of those who came after them.

AIR PORT PROPOSAL

Mr. O. GRATTAN ESMONDE (U.I., Wexford), referring to the possibility of establishing a national air port, said that they were asked to vote £42,000 for the repair and upkeep of aerodromes which were the relics of the defunct British Empire in this country, and of no value to the civilian population here. The establishment of a national air port, which he suggested could be provided at Dublin, would result in giving considerable employment.

A token vote of £10 had been included for improvements to the entrance to Leinster House. Last year there had been indications that something would be done, but nothing had been done towards those improvements. There must be some form of superstitious reason preventing the Government from removing the idol blocking the entrance to Linster House.

Mr. NORTON (Lab., Kildare) asked what national leaders it was proposed to commemorate by the erection of busts. Was it intended to have a bust prepared of the late James Connolly, whose claim to consideration could not be overlooked.

He again urged that work should be started on the reconstruction of the building used as a central sorting and delivery post office in Pearse street.

He also urged the speeding-up of work on the new married quarters at the Curragh Camp, and the renovation of the military barracks in Kildare, which at present looked like a disused workhouse.

NATIONAL SCHOOLS

Professor J. M. O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Kerry) asked whether the £120,000 voted last year for national schools had all been spent.

The PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY (Mr. FLINN) said that it was more than spent.

Professor O'SULLIVAN said that was satisfactory. There were two types of schools being erected—one for the National Educational authorities by the Board of Works, and the other under the ægis of the Technical Branch of the Department of Education. The Parliamentary Secretary should compare the costs, and see whether it would not be possible, with the same expenditure of money, to have a much more ample provision of national schools. He would like the Board of Works to submit to examination the relevant merits of the two types of schools.

With regard to museum accommodation, he thought that their Museum had always suffered from considerable overcrowding, though some years ago an effort had been made to clear out a certain amount of the exhibits. It would be a great advantage if the bold step were taken of transferring a large portion of the Museum to another part of the city, as near as possible. They should set up a separate building for the Art and Industrial Section, and leave the present building in Kildare street mainly to the archæological side.

Mr. BENNETT (U.I., Limerick) asked whether the residence of the High Commissioner in London, on which it was proposed to spend £2,800, was really the property of the Free State. If not had they any guarantee that the expenditure of this money would eventually be lost on the surrender of the residence.

Professor O'SULLIVAN asked if the new premises for Customs officers on the border were permanent.

The PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY said that they were.

Mr. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) asked whether the Parliamentary Secretary had resigned himself to permanent annual expenditure on the dredging of Arklow Harbour. There would be grave loss to shipping and serious interference with fishing in Arklow unless the Department came to the rescue with money to assist the local harbour board with dredging operations.

ACCOMMODATION

Mr. GEAROID O'SULLIVAN (U.I., Dublin County) congratulated the Parliamentary Secretary on the completion of the new telephone and telegraph exchange at Rathmines. He asked the Parliamentary Secretary whether any applications had been made to the Board of Works from city and surrounding districts for grants for extra school accommodation.

Mr. CURRAN (U.I., Tipperary) referred to the "total inadequacy of school accommodation in rural areas."

Mr. BELTON (Indpt., Dublin, N.) said that if the Parliamentary Secretary was considering the question of an airport for Dublin, he should not overlook the merits of Portmarnock Strand, which had been utilised by Atlantic airmen.

Mr. CORRY (F.F., Cork, E.) supported Deputy Curran in the plea for better school accommodation in rural areas.

Mr. FIONAN LYNCH (U.I., Kerry) asked whether the Government had changed their attitude towards the site in the Parish of St. Michael and John. The Board of Works had that site for a nominal rent for the past twenty years and no use had been made of it but when it was proposed to erect a new school there the Board of Works charged a high rent, giving the Government a handsome profit.

In reply, Mr. HUGO FLINN, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, said that except they enacted legislation they would have no power to close the Phœnix Park for public usage for any considerable time.

The Chapel Royal and Dublin Castle were being kept in good condition.

It was the duty of the Board of Works to see that real value was got for the Henry Street Arcade, if it was let. Negotiations now were proceeding for the letting of one side of the Arcade, and he hoped that they would be successful.

The provision of accommodation for the Department of Industry and Commerce could not wait until a bigger problem of finding accommodation for the Government offices was solved.

Mr. Dillon had raised the whole question of the commemoration of national heroes, while Mr. Norton had suggested that there should be a bust of James Connolly. That was not designed to be a complete solution of that particular question. The amount asked for was for a specific purpose, which could be dealt with now. Everything that was being done was intended to be done in the spirit of having represented every aspect of the national struggle.

AERODROME SITE

Plans in connection with the site for an aerodrome, along with other plans for a similar purpose, were being considered by a Committee of Public Works. There was, however, a matter of policy in relation to air ports, involving the Departments of Industry and Commerce, Defence, and External Affairs.

The whole question of accommodation for Government offices was being considered. The steps they were taking now were being taken with full advertence to the fact that eventually a large and more coherent scheme of accommodation would be provided.

The removal of the "national idol" in front of Leinster House would have to be considered in relation to the larger plan of the frontage. One of the difficulties was the extremely poor and undignified accommodation for visitors. The Museum and the National Library were crying out for accommodation, and a scheme was being considered that would combine improvements of these two façades, with the provision of proper accommodation for visitors. The matter was being considered by the architects.

He admitted that the Museum was overcrowded, and had been sacrificed to the Oireachtas, but that would be considerably relieved by the provision of the new folklore Museum at the Viceregal Lodge.

As to the High Commissioner's residence in London, the Ministry of Finance had carefully considered this matter in relation to the rents of available buildings, and the possibility of providing a building for themselves, and it was on strong, sound financial grounds that they had decided to do what they were doing.

ARKLOW HARBOUR

With regard to Arklow Harbour, and other harbours, such as Wexford, Loughshinny and Balbriggan, they were all highly technical branches of the sand-drift problem, and these problems were receiving the closest and most highly skilled attention. He hoped that the result of the investigations being made would enable them to be in a position to say definitely that nothing could be done at a reasonable price, or that something could be done with a reasonable prospect of success.

The PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY said that this year there would be about £200,000 to spend in grants for schools.

He promised to do everything possible with regard to the provision of Garda barracks in Wexford County.

Mr. MORRISSEY (U.I., Tipperary) said that £2,416 was being provided for the U.S.A. Legation, and asked did the State bear the whole cost, or was there a rent paid or any sums paid by the American Government.

The PARLIAMENTARY SECRETARY said that, as a matter of fact, they received a very considerable rent.

Progress was reported, and the House adjourned until May 1.

BIRR CHURCH BURNING

ACCUSED MAN FOR TRIAL

ALLEGED CONFESSION READ IN COURT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BIRR, Friday.

AT Birr to-day, John Mullins, cinema employé, Green street, Birr, was charged with breaking into Birr Catholic Church, setting it on fire, and stealing about 10s. from the church, last St. Patrick's morning.

Mr. Kennedy, State solicitor, prosecuted.

The accused man was not professionally represented.

Mr. Kennedy described the offence as a diabolical one.

Sergeant Flaherty deposed to the damage done to the church. On one pane of glass in the vestry window he found good, clear finger-prints. On the morning of March 26 the accused man called to witness at the barracks and said that he wanted to speak to witness.

STATEMENT TO POLICE

He took the accused man upstairs to the office, where the accused man voluntarily told witness that he had burned the church. The exact words of the accused man were:—"I burned the chapel."

Witness cautioned and charged the accused man, who stated:—"I admit breaking into Birr Chapel and burning it. I had drink taken and did not know what I was doing."

Superintendent Delaney, Birr, deposed to a statement made to him by the accused man after being cautioned and arrested.

In this statement the accused man said that on March 16 he had about three drinks of stout after his tea. He went to a public-house and had a lot of porter and gin. He was drinking on his own. He then went for a walk, got over the wall of the church, hid in the bushes for a good while after the church lights had gone out. He then went to the back of the church, picked up a piece of stick. He got at the water tap and broke some small windows.

"I cut," stated the accused man, "my right hand trying to climb through the window. When I could not get into the church by the two back windows I came around to the front gate and forced the door of the collection house, where I got a table. In getting on to the table I lighted a few matches. I brought the table around to the side of the chapel and placed the table beside a window at the Convent side of the chapel.

"I got up on the table and I burst in the window with my foot. When I got inside the church I lit a candle which I got in the candle box. I went around to the back of the altar and put on the electric switches. I had an idea that the switches would be at the back of the altar. I collected all the altar cloths, curtains and chairs, and lighted fires in three places. I broke the box where the candles were with a brush which I got at the back of the altar.

"I WAS MAD WITH DRINK"

"I think I got about nine shillings in all in the church. It was all in coppers. I walked to the main church door and broke the box there with the brush; also I put the box into the fire when I had it emptied. I left the chapel by the window through which I had come. Then I went home. It was about 3 a.m. when I got home. I was mad with drink when I broke into the church. I have all the money I got in the church spent."

Sergeant Macnamara, finger print expert attached to Garda Headquarters, deposed to comparing finger marks on the glass of the church window with the finger prints of the accused man taken by Warder Murnane, and the witness could state definitely that the finger mark on the window was made by the left middle finger of the person whose finger-prints appeared on the print sheet produced by Warder Murnane.

The accused man, who, in reply to the Justice, said that he did not wish to make any statement, was returned for trial at the next Birr Circuit Court.

Mullins also was returned for trial to Birr Circuit Court on a charge of breaking into and stealing from the lock-up shop of Thomas Winter, Birr, 36s. odd on February 22.

IRISH NEWS IN BRIEF

No Address to Duke.—Newry No. 2 (Co. Armagh) Rural District Council decided to take no action regarding the circular letter from the Ministry of Home Affairs, empowering them to spend up to £10 on an address to the Duke of Gloucester on his forthcoming visit to the six counties.

£600 for Goods for I.R.A.—At Cork Circuit Court yesterday a report for £600 was made in favour of William Barrett, Kinsale Junction, for goods supplied to the West Cork Column I.R.A. from 1919 to 1921. Evidence was given by Thomas Hales, T.D., and a letter was read from Mr. Tom Barry, confirming the supplies. The judge said that he believed that neither Mr. Hales nor Mr. Barry would exaggerate their statements.

94 Per Cent. Rate Collection.—On 31st March out of a total rate warrant of £127,045 for Mayo County Council all was collected except £7,660. Of this £2,295 is represented by credit notes, leaving the actual cash outstanding £5,401. Since the close of the half-year, the amount outstanding has been considerably reduced, fifteen collectors having completed their warrants. The collection is as satisfactory as in previous years, being 94 per cent., as against 95 per cent. last year.

Sweep Tickets.—John J. Meagher, St. Attracta road, Cabra, Dublin, was charged, in custody, at Bray District Court yesterday, before Mr. Liam Price, D.J., with unlawfully obtaining money, amounting to £100 2s. 10d., by false pretences. It was stated that he sold tickets for a draw for eleven sweep tickets in the Grand National draw; whereas, in fact, he had not paid for the tickets and had not obtained receipts for them, nor had lodged the counterfoils. He also was charged with falsely representing himself as an agent of "Coady's, the Lucky House," and as an agent of the Irish National Foresters. Evidence was given by Mrs. M. Devlin, of Bray, that she purchased a ticket for 2d. from the accused, whom she identified. He told her that she might be lucky and win £30,000, and that she could give her children a good education. The further hearing of the case was adjourned.

SAINT BARTHOLOMEW'S CHURCH

The addresses during Holy Week at St. Bartholomew's Church will be given by the Rev. R. Clement White, the Principal of King Alfred's College, Winchester. The first address will be at 11 o'clock to-morrow (Palm Sunday), then each day from Monday to Thursday at 5.30, and on Good Friday from 12 noon to 3 p.m.

ADELAIDE ROAD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Services in Adelaide Road Presbyterian Church to-morrow will be conducted by the Rev. William C. MacDonald, M.A., Edinburgh. Mr. MacDonald is the minister of Palmerston Place Church, one of the most important charges in the Church of Scotland, and he is regarded as one of the outstanding preachers in Edinburgh.

MIGRANTS TO MEATH

CONNEMARA MEN MOVE

MIXED FEELINGS OF NEW PLANTERS

NOT just "one acre and a cow"—the old idea of Irish labour life—but twenty-two acres of the richest land in the country, a cow, a horse and thirty shillings a week for a year—all provided by the Free State Government, is the lot of eleven families who were transferred from the Connemara Gaeltacht yesterday to Rathcarron, near Athboy, in County Meath.

But the transformation scene was not one of those of the pantomime fairylands. It was a hard wrench for these families to desert the houses—in some cases little more than hovels—in which they were born. About eighty persons were in the expectant little convoy that left Connemara at 6 o'clock in the morning for the new homesteads of the Midlands. Many were weeping, and even the children, excited as they were at the prospect of seeing new places and new faces, seemed subdued and fearful of what lay before them in this strange new land to which the Government was spiriting them.

There was little sleep in the Village of Lettermore, from which the new colonists of the Midlands have been taken, during Thursday night. Big lorries and omnibuses rumbled in from Galway, and, before it was daybreak, the work began of loading the lorries with such furniture as the emigrants possessed.

POVERTY AND FIELDS

One man there—a big strong fellow, with a wife and family—talked to an Irish Times representative while he watched the last of his few belongings stowed away on a lorry.

"In the old days 'twas to America, away out to the West, that we sent our people. Now the bright steamship posters we used to see outside the village store aren't there any more. There's pictures of the Volunteers in the Post Office and at the barracks, and now we are to go away to Meath—the pasture country—'to Gaelicise it,' the Government says."

He looked around him as if at the fields it was not light enough to see.

"It was poor enough land, and glad we ought to be that we are getting grand new places. But it is hard to leave it. My people were here longer than one can remember, and I loved the place. In the city you said we were 'poverty-stricken.' I'm wondering will I be frettin' more for the folks I'll be leaving here than about what you folks called 'poverty.'"

A neighbour came up to bid him good-bye, and I moved away. It was too strained a moment for even a hardened newspaperman. He was big and strong, but he secretly feared the new life and the strangers, and so he echoed the feelings of all the other members of the little convoy which, a few minutes later, slipped out of the little street of Lettermore to the fluttering of tear-stained handkerchiefs.

OBITUARY

THE EARL OF DUNDONALD

Lieutenant-General the Earl of Dundonald, a soldier with a long and distinguished record, died yesterday at Wimbledon Park, his London home, aged eighty-two. Douglas Mackinnon Baillie Hamilton Cochrane, twelfth Earl, was the son of the eleventh Earl of Dundonald, and Louisa, daughter of the late William A. Mackinnon, of Mackinnon, M.P. He succeeded his father in the title in 1885. Educated at Eton, he entered the 2nd Life Guards in 1870. He took part in the Nile Expedition of 1884-5, and in Stewart's desert march to relieve Khartoum, was present at the battles of Abin Klea and Goubat, and commanded the transport on the march to Metemmek.

Lord Dundonald's name is associated with two notable feats—his rides across the desert with despatches from the front announcing the seizure of the Gakdul Wells, and with those which told of General Gordon's death and of the fall of Khartoum. For these feats he was mentioned in despatches and promoted Lieutenant-Colonel. From 1895 to 1899 Lord Dundonald was Colonel Commanding the 2nd Life Guards.

In the latter year the scene shifts to South Africa, where he commanded the mounted troops and the South Natal Field Force, and was present at Colenso. He commanded the Second Cavalry Brigade, took part in the fight at Tugela, and with his Brigade on February 28, 1900, he entered Ladysmith.

Then, with the combined Third Mounted and Naval Volunteer Brigade, he fought on the Biggarsberg and at Laing's Nek, and afterwards was with the Third Mounted Brigade in the battles of Elmond's Nek, Botha's Pass and Bergandel, and in the operations in the Eastern Transvaal, being mentioned six times in despatches, and promoted Major-General for distinguished service.

From 1902 to 1904 Lord Dundonald commanded the Canadian Militia. In 1907 he was promoted Lieutenant-General. He served overseas in the Great War, and in 1915 he was Chairman of the Admiralty Committee on Smoke Screens. He is said, indeed, to have submitted to the Admiralty the suggestion of the smoke screen as a protective device for shipping. Lord Dundonald acted as special ambassador to the Peruvian centenary celebrations in 1921.

The Earl of Dundonald married, in 1878, Winifred, daughter of Robert Bamford Herbeth, late 2nd Life Guards, by whom he had two sons and three daughters. Lady Dundonald died in 1924. Lord Dundonald is succeeded in the title by his son, Lord Cochrane, who also served in the Great War.

MR. JAMES EADIE

The death of Mr. James Eadie took place at his home, The Limes, Lisbellaw, early on Friday morning. Mr. Eadie, who was in his 72nd year, was the fourth son of the late John Eadie, one of the founders of the renowned woollen manufacturing firm of Messrs. Henderson and Eadie. Mr. Eadie, upon the death of his father, became an active partner in the firm. He was keenly interested in the work of the Fermanagh County Hospital, of which he was a Life Governor and a member of the Committee of Management. He is survived by two children, Captain Eric Eadie, M.C., and Olive, wife of John Packham, an officer in the Gold Coast Government service.

DR. JOSEPH J. CARTON

BY A CORRESPONDENT.

The death of Dr. Joseph J. Carton, barrister-at-law, on the 9th instant, will be deeply felt by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. For over thirty years he was Librarian of the King's Inns Library, a post which he was most admirably fitted to fill by his legal erudition and literary knowledge. He was ever ready to lend to all inquirers his invaluable assistance in the pursuits of their various studies. He was the eldest son of the late Judge Carton, and was educated at Beaumont. He graduated in Trinity College in 1889, after a distinguished career, with a Senior Moderatorship and gold medal in experimental science. In 1893 he obtained the degree of LL.B., and, in 1902 that of LL.D. The University Philosophical Society awarded him in 1891 its gold medal for his essay entitled "A Plea for the Gaelic Bards," and in the following year he was awarded its medal in aesthetics.

Dr. Carton was called to the Irish Bar in Hilary Term 1891, and practised until January, 1901, when he was appointed Librarian of the King's Inns Library on the death of Mr. James MacIvor. His knowledge of books was profound, and his opinion on bibliographical matters was valued by experts. His courtesy and kindness in his official capacity were known and appreciated by all, from the highest ranks to the most junior member of the legal profession. A rare combination of humanity and real knowledge enabled him to inspire enthusiasm and interest into the most recondite matters, legal or otherwise. He was a delightful companion in the open or at the dinner table. Anything or everything would serve as a point round which his whimsical wit and wide learning loved to play. He was the best of hosts; modest to a fault himself, he had the quiet courtesy of a generation that is passing away, which knew how to draw out the best in all the company and make everyone present think and speak better than they thought they could. A gentle and learned soul, he will be sorely missed.

NORTH'S TRADE AND FINANCE

RELATIONS WITH GREAT BRITAIN

LORD CRAIGAVON'S DEFENCE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

VISCOUNT CRAIGAVON, addressing a meeting of the County Down Unionist Associations in Belfast this afternoon, said that great interest had been taken—and properly taken—in their financial relations with Great Britain during the past few weeks. He wished to say, as he had said on many occasions before, that the Ulster people were perfectly safe in the hands of Mr. Pollock. Sometimes criticism was made by one class or another that had not got exactly what they wanted. The higher finance connected with the relationship between the mother country and ourselves was under constant review year by year between ourselves and the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the other side.

The arrangements by the Joint Exchequer Board, whereby it was made possible for the British and Ulster Governments to come together from time to time, were definitely in favour of the people of Ulster.

THE LINEN INDUSTRY

Referring to the depreciation of the Belgian franc, and its effect upon the Ulster linen industry, Lord Craigavon said that this was a matter about which they felt great anxiety, and he could assure them that there had been no stone left unturned to show those who had the settlement of the matter in their hands the great harm that would be done to the linen industry of the North of Ireland if some step was not taken, and taken very rapidly. Mr. Pollock was crossing to London to-morrow evening, and he would put the matter even further than it had been put.

There was another matter on which he wished to speak. It had been remarked that there had been revaluation, and that a little tax had been imposed on local authorities for educational purposes, and that they ought to be on such a level that anything going in the way of grants from the Imperial Parliament should also reach the people of Ulster. Well, that was already the case; for before doing what they had been doing recently, it would be within the memory of everybody, the British Government had generously subsidised them 5s. a cwt. on cattle, and also the money to set the milk scheme going, so that it did not cost the Ulster people anything to carry out those two ameliorative measures.

M. Flandin, the French Prime Minister, has issued an official denial of the Paris report that he is calling an international monetary conference in Paris or elsewhere.

NATIONALIST MANIFESTO

REPLY OF LORD CRAIGAVON

CHARGES BASED ON FALSE GROUNDS

THE Prime Minister of Northern Ireland (Viscount Craigavon) has made the following comment on the manifesto issued by the Nationalist members of the House of Commons and the Senate of Northern Ireland in regard to the Jubilee address to the King:—

"The acid test of the charges levelled against the Government of Northern Ireland in the manifesto issued by the Nationalist Party as an explanation for their holding off from taking part in the celebrations of His Majesty's Jubilee is whether there is any substance, not only in this particular manifesto, but in the charges which are constantly being made of a similar character.

"My best answer to them all is the challenge issued in the House of Commons to the leaders of the Nationalist Party that if they would submit the names of persons of their persuasion who were desirous of leaving the so-called tyranny under which they purported to live, and transferring to the Free State, every facility would be given to exchange them for loyalists in the South who desired to come to Ulster and live under the sheltering folds of the Union Jack.

"Up to the present the name of a single person has not been submitted to the Government, and I think on reflection any reasonable man will agree that a fairer or more temperate offer could not be made, and as there has been no reply it is sufficiently strong evidence to show that the fulminations contained in this last manifesto have been based on false grounds, and therefore the whole thing should be treated as carrying no weight whatever, either to the public here or in other parts of the United Kingdom."

In the Northern House of Commons on December 6th last the Government, through the Minister of Home Affairs, and in reply to a question by Mr. McCarroll, stated:—

"If the hon. member will furnish me with the names of any members of that section of the community which he represents, who are anxious to emigrate to the Free State, the Government of Northern Ireland will willingly assist in every way in its power to arrange an exchange of holdings with loyalists of Donegal who may wish for a transfer to Northern Ireland. In view of the speeches of the hon. member and his parliamentary colleagues, I fully anticipate that the number of his friends desirous of entering the jurisdiction of the Free State will be amply sufficient to make room not only for the loyalists of Donegal, but for others in the South who would like once more to reside under the sheltering folds of the Union Jack."

DUBLIN TOBACCO FIRM'S BIG DEVELOPMENT

The negotiations, as outlined in these columns recently, for the purchase by William Ruddell, Ltd., the well-known tobacco manufacturers, of the large tobacco factory situated at East Wall road, and built by Messrs. Gallaher, Ltd., some years ago, have now been concluded.

The business was established by William Ruddell as far back as 1840 in premises situated in Francis street, and he was the originator of the modern roll tobacco. It was subsequently formed into a private limited company in 1907, when premises were acquired at James's street and Steeven's lane, where the firm has carried on business until the present time.

The company's new factory is planned and constructed on the most up-to-date lines, and embodies the latest improvements that experience has dictated to the science of the builder. The interior of the building has been laid out almost entirely on the ground level.

The main entrance to the general offices is through a revolving door leading to a fine hall, separated across its centre by a carved teak counter in the shape of a horse-shoe. The walls are finished with Lapidous plaster, whilst the pilasters are carved and covered with black marble, finished off with Ionic caps. The floors of the hall and passages are finished in black and white terrazzo, and lead to well-appointed offices. Attached to the building is a spacious canteen, with dining accommodation for several hundred persons, and recreation rooms for the use of the staff and workers.

The equipment includes, apart from the trade equipment, the most up-to-date heating and air-washing plant. The principle of this system is that all fresh air drawn into the building is automatically washed by passing through specially constructed water sprays, which remove any impurities. The air then passes through heated cylinders and is distributed throughout the building at the required temperature and humidity. This insures ideal conditions for manufacturing purposes, as well as for the comfort and health of those working in the building.

William Ruddell, Ltd., state that the work of equipping the premises is proceeding satisfactorily, and the firm hope to have the factory in full swing in the near future.

MARCH ON THE LAND

FIELD WORK UP TO DATE

GOOD CONDITION OF LIVE STOCK

ON the whole, the month of March was favourable for field work, and was fully availed of by farmers, says the report issued by the Department of Agriculture, Dublin, on agricultural conditions in the Irish Free State on 1st April. Spring wheat was sown extensively, and considerable progress was made with the sowing of oats and barley and the planting of second early potatoes. Ploughing of land for root crops and for main crop potatoes was also well advanced. At the close of the month all field work had been brought well up to date.

Sheltered pastures and those treated with artificial manures showed a covering of young grass, but others were still comparatively bare at the close of the month. Adequate supplies of fodder, grain and roots were reported to be on hands at most farms to carry stock over until grass is available.

Live stock continued in good health and condition during the month. No serious outbreak of liver fluke or other disease was reported from any district.

GOOD SEED OATS SCARCE

Only small lots of grain were marketed during the month. Good quality seed oats was scarce and in keen demand. The supplies of oats of feeding quality were about the normal. Seed oats realised from 15s. to 19s. per barrel, feeding oats around 14s per barrel. Seed barley was in good supply at prices ranging from 18s. to 24s. per barrel. Seed wheat fetched 30s. to 35s. per barrel. In some districts considerable supplies of oats will remain on farmers' hands after seed requirements are met, and these will be available for milling purposes.

The bulk of the flax crop had been scutched and disposed of at the close of the month. The yield of fibre was satisfactory, and the quality good. Demand was somewhat easier during the month at prices ranging from 35s. to 90s. per cwt.

POTATOES PLENTIFUL

Although potatoes were liberally fed to pigs during the season, fairly large stocks still remain on most farms. Export demand being dull during the month, the principal outlet was the home market, prices on which averaged about 3s. 9d. per cwt.—ranging from 2s. to 5s. according to quality and district. Trade in certified seed was keen during the month, and a good clearance was effected.

The planting of the new season's second early crop was begun during the month under favourable climate and soil conditions.

Reports from every district were to the effect that winter wheat had made excellent progress and that the crop was looking very promising. February-sown crops germinated slowly and showed thin in places. Substantial area of spring wheat was sown during the month, and it was anticipated that some additional sowings would be made during the early days of April. Seed of spring varieties was scarce in most districts. All indications pointed to an increase of at least 100 per cent. in the area under wheat during the present season. Catch crops were in a forward condition, and it was anticipated that they should give cuttings in mid-April.

The cattle fairs held during the month were well supplied with all classes of cattle. Store cattle continued in steady request. Fat cattle carrying licences for export were also in good demand, but other classes met a comparatively slow trade.

The following quotations may be regarded as representing the average range of prices realised at provincial fairs during the month for the various kinds of stock mentioned:—

	Prices per head. From	To
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
Calves under one month	6 0	1 10 0
Calves, 1 to 9 months ...	1 7 6	2 18 0
First Class Stores, 9 to 12 months	2 5 6	3 17 6
First Class Stores, 12 to 15 months	3 2 6	5 5 0
First Class Stores, 15 months to 2 years ...	4 15 0	7 0 0
First Class Stores, 2 to 3 years	5 5 0	9 10 0
First Class Stores, 3 years and over	7 0 0	10 10 0
First Class Fat Bullocks and Heifers	8 0 0	12 10 0
Best Fat Cows	4 10 0	9 0 0
Choice Springing Cows and Heifers	9 10 0	13 5 0
Freshly Calved Cows ...	9 10 0	13 0 0

SHEEP SATISFACTORY

The general health and condition of flocks continued satisfactory during the month. Fairs were well supplied and prices ranged up to 55s. each for fat sheep and to 45s. each for fat lambs.

The lambing season was almost completed during the month under generally satisfactory conditions, fewer losses being reported than usual. The crop of lambs was well above the average.

The number of pigs offered at the various marketing centres during the month was around the normal. Average prices for pigs suitable for the bacon trade ranged from 53s. 6d. to 55s. 6d. per cwt. dead weight, or approximately 39s. 3d. to 41s. 9d. on the live weight basis. Pigs of porker weights realised on the average from 54s. 6d. to 55s. 6d. per cwt. dead weight. Bonhams were in plentiful supply and in keen demand at prices ranging from 17s. to 25s. each. The breeding stocks continued to show a tendency towards an increase.

The horse fairs held during the month were well attended by buyers. Farm horses, troopers and hunters were in good demand at prices ranging up to £25 for best farm horses, up to £30 for troopers, and up to £75 for those of the hunter class.

The supplies of milk reaching the creameries continued well above the average during March. Milk delivered to creameries in February realised 5.44d. per gallon with separated milk returned to producers. Milk collected in the counties adjacent to Dublin for retail sale in the city returned 7d. to 9d. per gallon to the producers.

ABBEY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, RUTLAND SQUARE

Gounod's Oratorio, "The Redemption," will be rendered by the choir on Monday evening next, April 15th, at 8 o'clock. This work by the celebrated French musician is seldom heard in Dublin nowadays, and an opportunity is thus afforded of hearing a very interesting unfolding of the story of the Passion of Our Lord. The soloists are headed by the well-known Dublin tenor, Mr. Robert McCullough, assisted by Mrs. Topping and Messrs. Mervyn Bell and Marcus Ruddle, with Mr. William S. Greig, Mus.Bac., A.R.C.O., at the organ.

Mr. W. C. Dyrenforth, the 37-year-old proprietor of a grocery business at Frimley Green, near Camberley, Surrey, was last night found shot dead in his car in a side road near Frimley. He had a bullet wound in his head, and a revolver was lying near.

AROUND THE PICTURES

ROYAL HIBERNIAN ACADEMY

AN APPRECIATION

ONE of the features of this year's Royal Hibernian Academy is the number of interesting small pictures. Imagination is not a striking characteristic. The older styles are evidently still guiding us to the extent of the marked exclusion of any of the modern manners in art.

The fine quality of the water-colours at this year's exhibition may be the best comparative witness that the newer executants in oils are unresponsive to the passionate colour culture which carried modern art over the barriers of old conventions.

James Conway has made a notable advance with his "The Girl in Red" (No. 9). The fulness of colour in the main objects is bold and successful.

The clarity and well-balanced values of Mary Duncan's (No. 10) "Thatched House" will be noticed, and take one to the skilled hand of Letitia M. Hamilton, A.R.H.A., in No. 17, "The Riva, Venice." Next it is Sir George Clausen's (No. 18), "The Avenue," with its sunlit verdure and sense of cooling shelter from the mid-summer heat.

LANDSCAPES

No. 27, "Dooks Strand, Co. Kerry," is the first to meet the eye of the six or seven beautiful pictures by William Crampton Walker, A.R.H.A. Another artist who is represented by a whole series of finely-painted landscapes is Frank McKelvey, in mentioning whom one may refer to compeers like like W. J. Leech, R.H.A., and J. Humbert Craig. The latter, by his No. 59, appears to be adopting a bolder style, as distinct from his former somewhat stereotyped habit. This is a fine study in greens.

Kitty Wilmer has ambitiously ventured among the portraitists with a large canvas giving a life-like representation of Dr. Charles Boyce. It is hung too near Leo Whelan's "Edward Bohane, Esq., LL.D.," not to suffer by the proximity, but is a work of merit. This artist shines much more effectively in one of her two portraits of Signor Mauzi. These two pictures—Nos. 165 and 168—might serve as examples of how to do it and how not to. The profile pictures are full of character, with fine flesh tint; while the grey hair and rich red of the cap go to make a striking picture. She also has on view two effective small landscapes.

STILL LIFE

There will be some questioning before Brigid O'Brien's beautiful painting of still life (No. 38, "Daisies and Sweet Peas").

Grace Henry has in "Sails at Chioggia" (No. 46) a rich combination of colour, and also represented by a fine display—"Marigolds" (No. 38). Lily Williams, A.R.H.A.; Nassau Blair Browne, R.H.A.; Estella Solomons, A.R.H.A., are all three characteristically represented by good work.

Hesketh Hubbard's "My Garden Under Snow" (No. 68) is replete with the still, dead atmosphere of a wintry scene. Nos. 87 and 88, by

CORK STREET FEVER HOSPITAL AND HOUSE OF RECOVERY.

The Managing Committee of the Cork Street Fever Hospital and House of Recovery held their usual meeting in the Board Room of the Hospital on Thursday, the 11th April, 1935, at 9 o'clock a.m., John W. Freeman in the chair. There were also present:—J. W. Shackleton, W. R. Wigham, Arthur Pearson, E. A. Pim, E. G. Goodbody, A. Malcomson, S. H. Roche.

The Medical Superintendent (Dr. C. J. McSweeney) reported that diphtheria and measles continue to be very prevalent. The measles epidemic should shortly show signs of declining, but up to the present every available bed was required for the treatment of cases. There were, on an average, 150 cases of diphtheria under treatment, the type of the disease prevailing being still quite virulent. Of the 19 deaths during the month—7 were due to measles (or its complications) affecting infants of a year or younger, 4 to diphtheria (2 of these being hæmorrhagic), 1 to erysipelas (a baby of 7 months), 3 to lobar pneumonia, and 1 each to puerperal sepsis, tuberculous meningitis, cancer of the rectum, and empyema.

In addition to those already mentioned, the following infectious diseases were under treatment during the month:—Scarlet fever, typhoid, cerebro-spinal fever, whooping cough, influenza, mumps and rubella.

The shortage of beds is still causing great inconvenience to the general public, as well as to all concerned with the management of infectious disease. The Auxiliary Branch of the Hospital at Beneavin was in full occupation during the month.

The accounts for supplies to the Hospital during the month were examined and paid.

Messrs. E. A. Pim and Alexander Malcomson were appointed Visiting Governors for the current month.

After the transaction of the necessary business, the Board adjourned.

The Managing Committee thankfully acknowledge the following subscriptions and donations received during the past month towards the funds of the Hospital:—

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

EASTON'S NARROW WIN

Fondness Filly Best in a Big Field of Two-Year-Olds

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LINGFIELD PARK, Friday Night.

LORD WOOLAVINGTON'S Easton, with odds of 100 to 30 laid on him, won his race to-day, the Lingfield Park Spring Stakes, but the margin in his favour—only a neck from the three-year-old Sea Bequest—was not quite in accord with the prohibitive price that was asked for about him by the ring. The verdict does not suggest that it was the smashing performance that had been expected from a colt of his reputation.

About three furlongs from home Gordon Richards took him into the lead. He was then on a tight rein, for he is a colt that needs a good deal of restraint. He was still on a tight rein, and had a length's lead of Sea Bequest as they came to the lower ring, and his jockey was still holding him up when he approached the winning post.

The crowd seeing Gordon Richards sitting so comfortably and regardless of danger, shouted at him, thinking he had mistaken the post, but he knew what he was doing. The persevering E. Smith, on Sea Bequest, kept on riding Jack Jarvis's colt hard, and he got within a neck of Easton.

All That Was Expected

Richards may have treated the three-year-old too lightly and thought there was little danger from him. If one takes it that Easton is a very good colt, and did all that was expected of him here, that will be enough.

His next race is likely to be against Windsor Lad and Umidwar in the Coronation Cup. Easton was Fred. Darling's first winner of the season, and his appearance was a credit to his trainer. He has improved out of knowledge since I first saw him on the day he came from France to run for the Two Thousand Guineas, and there was no better looking colt in training.

Portlaw's full sister, Hyndford Bridge, has grown into a grand filly. She was started here to see if she could get the mile, in view of her engagement in the One Thousand, and she ran well and lay up with Sea Bequest, who was making the running, but she was beaten when she had gone six furlongs.

A Difference

Commander III. was beaten six lengths for second place, which shows what a difference there was between first and second and the others. Caymanas, not yet at his best, was fourth. Monico, a French colt, imported by Lord Carnarvon, will see a better day, and the backward Badruddin also.

The rest of the racing was humdrum. A complete outsider, Mr. James Sharp's Monk's Call, won the Surrey Selling Plate very easily by two lengths from Demigod, and was then sold to Mr. P. G. Russell for 240 guineas. She is physically well qualified for pony racing.

The other seller went to Mr. V. P. Misa's Rose Bow, who started joint favourite with Royal Venture before she beat Diophrite a length and a half.

There was a very big field of two-year-olds for the Lingfield Spring Plate, and the best of them proved to be a filly by Bold Archer out of Fondness, who came right away from the others before she beat Sub Nigel and the Dafila filly by four lengths and half a length. This winner only cost 40 guineas as a yearling, and was later passed on to Mr. Sedgwick, a bookmaker, for whom the former steeplechase jockey, Geo. Wilson, trains her.

No trainer turns out his horses better than Wilson, who also won the Victoria Handicap with Mr. Joe Baylis's Kyles of Bute, who finished strongly to beat Artful Lad and Prize Law.

Double Up Scores

Mr. P. Dunne, the joint master of the Warwickshire Hounds, who bought a half-share in Bellacose the other day, won the Felbridge Handicap with a Winalot colt, Double Up, a name that recalls a well-known chaser of ten years ago that Frank Hartigan trained for the late Mr. Barclay Walker, who was disqualified at Liverpool when Mr. Hubert Hartigan finished just first on him.

Gordon Richards rode a powerful finish on Double Up to beat the Felstead filly, Eastern Lass, by a neck, E. Smith, who rode Sea Bequest, being again on the loser.

Selections

Bogside has the distinction of putting on the most important event of the three meetings to-morrow—the Scottish Grand National. It is unfortunate for Mr. Rank that last year's winner, Southern Hero, has a bruised foot and cannot run. Shangar runs instead, but, although he has been doing better lately, I cannot see him winning.

Blue Prince had a hard race in the Grand National, and they do not always come again so soon. Brienz did not get anything like so far at Liverpool, and this sharp course where they go along will suit one of his speed.

Kellsboro' Jack has an obvious chance if the going is good. Lord Rosebery very much expects to win the race with Keen Blade, and he may be the danger or the alternative to BRIENZ.

SOLENOID has gone to run for the Stewards' Plate, and, unlucky as he has been, it hardly seems possible that he can lose this race.

Lingfield has a thin programme, with the exception of the Leigh Memorial Handicap—a race founded in memory of that great old sportsman, the late Mr. "Bunny" Leigh, who owned the land on which we race here. Ajax ran so disappointingly and so much below expectations at Newbury that I cannot trust him again. This race looked a fairly good thing for Boston West, but, as Jack Jarvis has sent FELSWOOD instead, he may be the best.

The Chiddingstone Maiden Plate may be won by VIMY RIDGE, and the Mapleton Plate for two-year-olds by GEORGE HERE, to whom the danger may be Moonsong and Sky Pioneer.

FIRST IMPRESSION should win the Edward Elgar Plate, and SILKSTAR looks the best in the Spring Handicap at Worcester.

GALTEE MORE.

FELSWOOD'S CHANCE

Kellsboro' Jack for Scottish Grand National

STAY-AT-HOME backers can again interest themselves in three meetings to-day. The Lingfield and Worcester fixtures will attract plenty of runners. At Bogside there is chasing, hurdling and flat racing.

Although most of the good-class three-year-olds were seen out at the Craven meeting at Newmarket, there are many proven performers in the Leigh Memorial Handicap at Lingfield to-day. All Flint Man's three victories last season were over five furlongs. He is reported to have progressed during the winter. With only 11lb. more to carry, I have a slight preference for Ajax despite his recent failure at Newbury where he ran much below his home form. As he may have been unlucky in that big field he is probably worth another chance

The only success of Celestielle in seven attempts last season was a five furlongs nursery over this course in November. She has been handicapped on that form with Felswood, who just missed a place in a desperate finish. Felswood may have the greater scope for improvement. It may be recalled that his sire, Felstead, showed his best form in his second season.

FELSWOOD

represents J. Jarvis's powerful stable in preference to Popcorn, Fast Castle and Boston West I give him the vote. Ajax may be the next best.

The Four Elms Plate may be left to NEWMARKET.

He finished fourth in his only race last year when favourite. I am assured he has only to run up to his recent home form to open his winning account. Gordon Richards rides.

Wing Commander, The Knight Templar, Zanzibar, and Vimy Ridge have all given proof of their ability to stay the twelve furlongs of the Chiddingstone Plate. I expect to see returned the winner in spite of his failures behind Brush and Comb at Liverpool.

MOONSONG,

third in the Brocklesby, looks something to bet on in the Mapleton Plate.

The two most fancied for the Spring Handicap at Worcester are Lady Pat and Silkstar. I prefer because he is reported to be in fine fettle. He has been specially kept for this race.

The Scottish Grand National at Bogside will not attract the sensational Aintree failure, Golden Miller, or Southern Hero. Blue Prince, who beat all except Reynoldstown at Liverpool, in spite of his saddle slipping, is fancied to go one better. At the weights, however, I cannot see him beating

KELLSBORO' JACK.

Ivor Anthony's charge has been specially prepared for the race since running at Cheltenham.

GAELIC GAMES

KILDARE v. DUBLIN

Important National League Match at Naas

(By PAT'O.)

Four points down, and playing their last round in Division I., Dublin footballers are approaching to-morrow's game at Naas with more than usual earnestness. Victory is equally important to Kildare, as the following table shows:—

	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
Mayo	4	3	1	6
Dublin	5	3	2	6
Meath	4	2	2	4
Kildare	4	2	2	4
Louth	4	2	2	4
Laoighis	5	2	3	4
Galway	4	1	3	2

Five of the seven counties still hold winning chances, but the number is likely to be reduced to three after to-morrow's results. Kildare were not so convincing at the end of the hour against Wexford, and the selectors have tightened up the defence and attack. They may line out as follows:—

Kildare—Chambers (goal); C. Higgins, Goff, J. Byrne; Maguire, J. Higgins, Mulhall; Waters, Fox; Matthews, Martin, P. Byrne, Geraghty, Keogh, Dowling.

Eleventh-hour changes are always probable with Kildare, for there is a wealth of talent. The team shows many changes from the side that went out before Wexford in the first round of last year's championship. Newcomers in Geraghty, Dowling, and Mulhall are spoken of highly, and Kildare's front line to-morrow is reputed to be the best fielded since they last won the All-Ireland title.

Geraghty is an excellent winger, and Dowling, of Clane, has all the attributes of a class man. This pair should fit in well with Tom Keogh as pivot in attack. The Guardsman was seen to good purpose in the extreme position at Wexford Park when scoring eight points and making openings for three others.

Against Meath Dublin were fitting in at every position. What they lack in individuality is made up in good team work. Hickey has dropped out through injuries, and it is likely that O'Shea, of Geraldines, will re-appear at right-half, and the team may read:—

Dublin—McDonnell (goal); Brennan, Casey, F. Cavanagh; O'Shea, Beggs, P. Cavanagh; Comerford, Kelly; Banville, Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Wellington, Colleran, Brady.

It is rumoured in selection circles that Malone, who is figuring prominently with Howth, may be tried, and Heron's display as substitute against Meath claimed attention. These will be the first at hand in case of injuries, and, all round, Dublin's resources are ample. Kildare are a great home team. Successive defeats of Galway, Mayo and Wexford have brought confidence, and I expect them to lead at half-time. A close finish is certain with Dublin knocking at the Kildare gateway, for the visitors are fast finishers.

Galway's form has been erratic, and it is strange to see last year's champions at the foot of the League. Success to-morrow will have no more than a sentimental value, but they are as keen as ever on defeating their neighbours to confirm their superiority at Castlerea in 1934. Mayo, only two points down, are reputed to be very fit, and will line up as follows:—

Galway will have their full championship side out, and the advantage of venue will be a big one.

Meath and Louth have had alternate victories through half a dozen meetings in a twelvemonth, and Louth are favourites. The losers will be definitely out of the running, and a draw is not improbable.

CYCLING

LEINSTER JUNIOR 25 MILES ROAD RACE

For the first time for many years a Leinster Championship over 25 miles will be decided to-morrow, and the Central Cycling Council of the N.A.C.A. are breaking new ground in allotting the race to a venue outside the metropolis.

The course, which was selected and measured by the President of the Council, runs from Bryanstown, Drogheda, via Duleek to Kilmoon, and thence to the turn at Crickstown. The officials will be:—Judge, Mr. J. J. Sweeney, President of the Council; timekeepers, Messrs. Sweeney and T. O'Connor; official at turn, W. P. Salmon; recorder, S. O'Connor. A sealed handicap is being run in connection with the race. The entries are:—

1, F. Kelly (Tredagh C.C., Drogheda); 2, L. McLaughlin (An Uaimh); 3, P. O'Neill (National); 4, D. Fairthlough (Tredagh); 5, B. A. Mahoney (Curragh); 6, S. McNamee (An Uaimh); 7, P. INTER-ALLIANCE MATCH

LEINSTER AND ULSTER MEET AT DOLLYMOUNT

To-morrow the annual match between the Leinster and Ulster Alliances will be played at Dollymount for the McMullan Trophy, which since the inception of the meeting at the Castle, Rathfarnham, has been won each year by the home team.

The conditions are eighteen holes by medal play, the aggregate of the best twelve net scores of each team counting for the trophy. There will also be three gross and three net prizes, provided by the Committee of the Leinster Alliance.

In view of the want of tram and bus facilities for getting to Dollymount, the Leinster Committee requests those members with cars to collect those who have not cars, or give seats to caddies on their way to the links, which will be closed to members of the Royal Dublin Club for the day.

Members of Royal Dublin can play free of green fee at Bettystown, Birr, Castle, Clontarf, Dun Laoghaire, Hermitage, Grange, Greystones, Kilcroney, Killiney, Milltown, Newlands, Rathfarnham, Skerries, St. Anne's and Woodbrook

DUNLOP PROFESSIONAL TOURNAMENT

On next Tuesday and Wednesday the Dunlop professional tournament will be played at Royal Dublin, Dollymount.

Markers are required, and those willing to act on either day are asked to communicate with the Secretary, Royal Dublin Club, as soon as possible.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH

THE CURRAGH, Friday.

This was a delightfully fine morning, but very little in the shape of strong work took place.

BEHAN gave Grand Circle, Rope Trick, and Peace Conference a steady six furlongs spin; Colleen's Actress compassed a mile at a steady pace; the two-year-olds, in batches, did cantering exercise over five furlongs.

JAMES CANTY'S Representation, St. Ultan, Superstitious, Fallock, Denis Hannon, and Friar's Music all had steady seven furlongs work; Old Drumcondra, Lady of Spain, Cross Guns and Red Garter came five furlongs at a useful pace.

BATEMAN CUP MATCHES

Bective and N.I.F.C. to Meet in the Final To-day

BECTIVE	8	U.C.G.	0
N.I.F.C.	13	U.C.C.	0

In the first of the semi-finals of the Bateman Cup at Lansdowne road yesterday, Bective Rangers found University College, Galway, such stubborn opponents that they could not take the lead until fifty minutes after the start, and at the end the Leinster Cup winners were only eight points to the good—a goal and a try to nil. The honours of the day, undoubtedly, went to the Connaught men, who gave a grand display of grit and determination on an iron-hard ground, and by deadly tackling and whole-hearted loose rushes completely bustled Bective off their game.

Actually Galway had almost as much of the play as their opponents, but they had no idea of the right thing to do near the line. Their backs were slow and had no combination, and while the forwards were good with their feet, they could not handle the ball. Every man of the fifteen, however, tackled fiercely, and the forwards fairly played themselves to a standstill.

BECTIVE'S WEAKNESS

Obviously taken by surprise, Bective never settled down, either back or forward. The trouble started at scrum-half, where Griffin seldom gave a reasonable pass, and gradually the passing and handling of the other backs fell to pieces. As well as Griffin, Bailey and Delaney were bad offenders, and only J. Doyle and Whiteside were at all dangerous. The forwards started in rather sleepy fashion and lacked fire all through. Their best work was done in the tight scrums, in which they got possession nearly every time. L. Doyle played a very lively game and was by far the best of the eight.

For some time after the start Galway kept their opponents inside their own twenty-five, but after the first quarter of an hour Bective began to recover. A movement between J. Doyle and Whiteside was the nearest they got to a score, the latter being just held up on the line. Again at the start of the second half Galway attacked hard, and R. J. Sandys was only just tackled on the line by McCartan, who was extremely safe throughout. It was inevitable that Galway would tire before the end, and eventually Bailey made a run down the touch-line and passed inside for L. Doyle to score. Just before full-time Whiteside, playing on the left wing, received a pass at the Galway 25 and cut inside to score a very clever try between the posts, which J. Doyle converted.

Bective Rangers—R. F. McCartan; J. J. Doyle, J. A. Delaney, P. F. Bailey, J. B. Kenneally; I. W. Whiteside, J. Griffen; T. O'Donovan, C. Carroll, L. Doyle, P. F. Lawlor, S. Deering, A. Wade, R. Aird, J. McGrath.

N.I.F.C.	13	U.C.C.	0

In the second Bateman Cup match North of Ireland beat University College, Cork, by 2 goals 1 try (13 points) to nil—a rather surprising margin, in view of Cork's good form this season. When the ball came out to the backs there was only one team in it, however, for the North backs handled and ran in brilliant style, whereas the Cork passing broke down every time in the centre. An injury to O Brien in the first half was a bit of bad luck for the losers, as he had to go out on the wing afterwards. Up till that time he had looked to be the only dangerous attacker on the team. O'Sullivan, Lane and O'Donovan could do nothing right, despite the fact that fine work by the forwards kept them on the attack for long periods in the second half.

BRILLIANT HALF-BACKS

By contrast, the brothers Adrain had a perfect understanding at half-back for North, the out-half making a number of grand runs, as well as having a hand in all three tries. Malcolmson and Stewart were very quick to seize an opening, and ran strongly when they went through. Both full backs fielded and kicked steadily. The North forwards started well, and held their own in the first half, but afterwards they could not match the Cork pack in the loose, though their tackling in the open was always good.

A clever pick up and run by J. A. Adrain enabled him to make an opening for Stewart, who ran very strongly from the Cork 25 to score a good try after 20 minutes' play, J. A. Adrain converting. Shortly after the latter cut through, and Malcolmson, coming up at top speed to take the pass, went right through to score between the posts, and again J. A. Adrain converted. For most of the second half Cork pressed hard, but they could not bring off a passing movement, and whenever North did break away they looked more likely to score. Before the end they increased their lead, and the movement started with another cut through by J. A. Adrain. Malcolmson took his pass and cut inside, catching the whole defence on the wrong foot, and near the line he gave Stewart a scoring pass.

DEALINGS IN IRISH DUNLOPS

RAILS DEPRESSED

Markets closed the week on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday with a fairly active appearance, but the tone on the whole was slightly easier.

The feature was the commencement of dealings in the Irish Dunlop Rubber Preference shares, which opened at 1s. 3d. premium. There was heavy "stay" selling and the market turned easier, and eventually closed 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d. premium.

The Funds, both home and British, held steady to firm. Cork 4 p.c. Loan gained a point, but Banks were unchanged.

Guinness Ordinary held 138s., but Dublin Distillers "A" eased slightly.

Rails were again all sellers. Great Southern Preference fell two points, the Debenture a point, and the Guaranteed gave way to 58. Great Northern Debenture lost a further two points at 68 and Dublin Tram Ordinary relapsed 2s. 6d.

Alliance Gas Ordinary were in request. Carroll Preference, Irish Sugar Preference and May Roberts (Ireland) Ordinary all shaded off.

Tobaccos marked pence losses, but Textiles showed a firmer trend, with Courtaulds several pence higher at 50s. 4½d. Dunlop Rubbers gave way, but Vickers Ordinary hardened to 10s. 1½d. and Lever 8 p.c. Preference to 31s. 9d.

LONDON FIRM

MOVEMENTS NARROW

The week closed quietly on the London stock markets yesterday, and, while there were indications that a cheerful Budget speech is anticipated, little inclination to open up fresh commitments was shown. The approach of the Easter holidays was another factor which was not conducive to fresh business, while confidence continued to be undermined to some extent by events at Stresa, and, although a fairly firm tone was displayed, movements generally were narrow.

Support for gilt-edged stocks was resumed following Thursday's reaction, and, among the few issues which recovered slightly, old Consols made the best showing, with a gain of ¼ to 86½, but, apart from a similar rise in some India stocks, changes were unimportant. In the foreign bond market inactive conditions prevailed, and the trend of values was downward. In early dealings a moderate demand arose for Japanese issues, to which attention was drawn by the yields obtainable, but at the finish prices were unaltered. Germans closed irregular, and Brazilians were lower all round.

Business in British Rails remained small, but a harder tendency developed, and, although movements were not numerous, they included a point rise in Southern Prefd., while Great Western Ord. also advanced.

The turnover in the Industrial market was restricted, but most of the leaders attracted buyers, and finished firmer where, for individual reasons, certain shares were active. Interest in Cables and Wireless stocks quickened in view of the approaching Preference dividend announcement, and, for the same reason a demand arose for Dunlops and some Iron and Steel issues. The dividend announcement by Babcock and Wilcox was less than expected, and, consequently, shares fell.

Among the few features in the Mining groups was a fresh demand for De Beers issues, particularly the Pref., which rose sharply. The buying was due to the belief that the question of dividend arrears will be dealt with at the meeting. "Kaffirs" were overshadowed to some degree by currency uncertainties, and profit taking caused slight recessions in prices, but, in spite of this, the tone was quite satisfactory. West Africans were quiet, and showed little change. Business in the Oil share market was small and price movements narrow.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

TONE CONTINUES SATISFACTORY

Trading in the Industrial market yesterday remained on a moderate scale, and although some irregularity was noticeable in price movements the general tone was described as firm.

The Trans-Atlantic counters seemed rather undecided in their movements, and, apart from Nickels, which further improved to 26⅝, showed little change on balance.

"Emmies" remained on the quiet side, being the turn easier at 27s. 6d.

A STRONG FEATURE.

A strong feature was provided among Electric Supply shares by Electric Supply Corporation, good buying of which raised the price 2s. to 60s. As regards Electrical Equipments there was again a steady demand for British Insulated, and the price further advanced 9d. to 77s. 6d. Crompton Parkinson came into request and rose 1s. 6d., while Johnson and Phillips put on another 6d.

Firmness was displayed by the Motor group. Dennis Bros. were bought on dividend prospects, and further improved 7½d. to 24s. Leylands were a good market, and gains of a few pence occurred in Austins, Fords and A.E.C.

Rolls-Royce were a firm spot among Aviation and kindred descriptions, the shares rising 9d. to 112s. 3d.

In the Iron and Steel group Babcock and Wilcox were prominent. The final dividend being below market estimates some selling resulted, and a net loss of 1s. was recorded at 44s. 3d. Otherwise a satisfactory tendency prevailed.

TEXTILES SUPPORTED.

There was moderate support for Textiles, and in the Rayon section Courtaulds met with a fair inquiry, and closed at 50s. 3d. American Celanese were, however, on the dull side at 47s. 6d., while British Celanese issues also lost ground.

Among Drapery and Departmental Stores issues, Marks and Spencers were steady at 5⅞, while Woolworth were again firm at 104s. 3d.

In the Provision and Catering group Unilever responded to some demand, and strengthened to 27s. 6d., while the N.V. were also better at 29s. 6d. Tate and Lyle held around 100s. 9d.

Breweries made a mixed showing. Hodgsons eased to 62s. 3d. at first, but the price steadied later to 65s. Guinness improved 6d. to 138s.

The Tobacco leaders had a harder appearance. "Bats" gained the turn at 54⅛, Gallahers at 5⅛, and "Imps" and 6d⅜, while Tobacco Securities Trust Defd. recovered to 4⅜.

Following the improvement in the earlier days of the week, News shares were subjected to moderate profit-taking sales.

In the Land section buyers were again in evidence for Hudsons Bays, and they closed 6d. higher at 19s. 9d.

FIRM SPOTS.

Although business remained on a restricted scale, the Miscellaneous section still showed many firm spots. Turner and Newalls were again well supported on prospects of an increased interim dividend, and gained 1s. 3d. to 55s. 6d., after changing hands up to 56s. 3d.

Imperial Chemicals were a shade harder, and Dunlops were in request up to 48s. 9d., but Triplex Glass sagged to 66s. 9d. British Match were supported up to 37s. Lever Bros. Pref. issues put on a few pence further, and United Molasses rallied to 19s.

OILS UNINTERESTING

Dealers in the Oil share market yesterday reported the smallest volume of transactions of any day for some weeks. Not only was there little public interest, but professional operators showed no inclination to enter upon fresh commitments. Owing to the lack of interest, prices were extremely sensitive to small transactions either way. On balance, although price changes were mostly adverse, movements were generally of small amount.

RUBBERS INACTIVE

Business continued to be of small dimensions in the Rubber share market yesterday, and movements, though in most cases unfavourable, were of little importance. A quietly steady tone characterised the commodity section, and spot Rubber, selling up to 5½d. per lb., showed further improvement. United Kingdom stocks of rubber are estimated to have increased by 650 tons during the past week.

BELFAST

Belfast Exchange steady. War Loan 3½ per cent., 105⅞, 106; Conversion 3½ per cent. Loan, 106½ for a small lot; Local Loans, 95; Ulster 4½ per cent., 112½. Westminster Banks were done at 88s. 1½d. Great Northern Railway stock 7½, a decline of 1. Industrials were quiet. English Sewing Cottons were done at 40s. 3d.; Fine Spinners, 6s. 9d.; Inglis Ordinary, 110s.; Robertson, Ledlie and Ferguson Preference, 24s. 6d.; Vickers, 10s. 1½d. British-American Tobacco shares were done at 112s. 6d., and Imperial Tobaccos at 135s. 6d.; Boots, 48s. 9d.; Shells, 53s. 3d.; Low Temperatures, 2s. 3d.; Dunlop Irish New 5 per cent. Participating Preference shares, 10s. paid, were done at 1s. 4½d. premium; Commonwealth Mining, 12s.

CORK

First National Loan unaltered, 102½; Second Loan, 113¾; Third Loan harder, 107½; Land Bonds easier, 110¾; War Loan improved to 106¾; Bank Stock, 294; Nationals done at 46s. 9d.; Great Southern Pref. sellers, 25; ditto Guar. sellers, 58½; ditto Deb. fell to 72; B. and I. Pref. sellers, 16s.; Burke Ord. sellers, 23s. 9d.; Coats Ord. hardened to 64s.; Cork Gas sellers, 7½; Irish Dunlop Pref. (10s. paid), 11s. 4½d.; Harbour Board Irredeemable, 73 x.d.; Irish Cinemas Ord. sellers, 5s. 9d., pref. 18s. 9d.; May Roberts (Ireland) Ord., 15s. 10½d., and Pref. 10s.; McCarthy's Pref. sellers, 60s.; Guinness Ord. weakened to 137s. 9d.; Ranks (Ireland) Ord. sellers 14s. 9d., Pref. done at 22s. 9d.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Ashlay Gardens Properties.—On Ordinary 6 per cent., tax free. (Same.)

Alagar Rubber Plantations.—Payment of 4 per cent. for 1934.

Alagar Rubber Plantations.—Dividend of 4 per cent for 1934. (Nil in 1933.)

Broken Hill Proprietary.—Half-yearly dividend of 1/ per share (Australian currency). (Same.)

British Controlled Oilfields.—A drop in production income from 2,050,571 dollars in 1933 to 891,580 dollars in 1934 is shown. After production expenses, fees, and depreciation—provision for the latter being 796,714 dollars, against 803,705 dollars—net loss was 380,906 dollars, compared with a net profit of 820,424 dollars. Production from Venezuela and Trinidad combined amounted to 2,340,695 barrels in 1934, compared with 2,758,781 barrels in 1933. Prices realised under the respective sales contracts were lower than in the preceding year for both areas. The adverse exchange had a serious effect upon the company's results during the year owing to the fact that Venezuela, where the company has a large expenditure, remained upon gold while the receipts were on a sterling basis. The extra cost of remittances —i.e., loss on exchange during the year—was over £50,000

Bikam Rubber.—Payment of 4 per cent., less tax, for 1934—first since 7½ per cent. in 1929.

British Engine, Boiler and Electrical Insurance.—Profit for year, £55,575. Final dividend of 16 per cent., making 31 per cent., less tax. £25,000 to pension fund; £5,000 to reserve. Forward, £12,485.

British Power and Light Corporation (1929), Ltd.—Dividend on Ordinary Shares of 3½ per cent. actual, less tax, for nine months ended December 31, 1934, the date to which the accounts of Corporation have been made up. For the twelve months to March 31, 1934. Ordinary shareholders received 3 per cent., so that the present payment of an annual basis represents an increase of 2 per cent.

Babcock and Wilcox, Ltd.—Final Ordinary, 4 per cent., making 8 per cent., against 3 per cent., making 6 per cent.

Bukit Badang Rubber.—Dividend of 2½ per cent., less tax, for 1934 (against nil).

Bank of New Zealand.—Final dividend of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares for the last half-year, making the distribution 10 per cent., the same as for the previous year. The distribution will be made in New Zealand currency.

Doloswela Rubber and Tea.—Payment of 4 per cent., less tax, for 1934. (Last year 3 per cent.)

George Wimpey and Co. (Building Contractors, etc.).—The report for the year ended December 31 states that the net profit amounted to £904,921, while £3,353 was brought in. The directors have transferred £18,000 to income reserve and have paid £15,000 to general reserve, and now recommend a dividend on the Ordinary Shares of 20 per cent., together with a capital bonus of 5 per cent. The company was made public in 1934. For 1933 the net profit was £61,214, and after deducting £17,921 for taxation and transferring £5,065 to contingencies account, an Ordinary dividend of 20 per cent was paid.

Hangkat Salak Rubber and Tin.—On Preferred Ordinary 6 per cent., making 16 per cent. for 1934, and on Deferred 6 per cent. for year (against 2 per cent.).

Henekeys.—Dividend of 7½ per cent. per annum on the Cumulative Part. Preference shares for six months to 1st May, 1935, together with the extra 1 per cent. Participation for the year to 1st November, 1934

Horne Brothers (General Outfitters, etc.).—The accounts for the year ended January 31 last show, after providing for general expenses, a net trading profit of £54,040, which compares with £50,197 for the previous year. Directors' fees, depreciation, interest and taxation, etc., absorbed £15,319, as against £11,529, leaving net profit of £38,721, as against £38,668, and £2,250 was brought in. After providing for the Preference dividend there remained a balance of £26,152, which is carried forward. The Ordinary Shares, which are privately held, last received a dividend for 1930-31, when 5 per cent. was paid.

India Tyre and Rubber Co.—An increase in net profit from £50,127 in 1933 to £53,789 in 1934 is shown; £5,000 placed to taxation reserve and £5,960 to Preference dividend reserve. The Ordinary Shares receive 5 per cent., this being the first payment on this class of share since the capital was reorganised in 1933. After these share allocations a surplus of £16,091 remains to go forward

Kintyre Tea Estates.—No payment on Ordinary in respect of the year ending June 30, 1935. (Last year 2½ per cent.)

London Associated Electricity Undertakings.—The Board of the above company have decided to proceed with the scheme to acquire the Ordinary and Preference shares and Stock of the undermentioned companies:—Charing Cross Electricity Supply Company, Westminster Electric Supply Corporation, St. James's and Pall Mall Electric Light Company, Brompton and Kensington Electricity Supply Company, and Chelsea Electricity Supply Company. The capital of the company has accordingly been increased to £7,022,100. It is stated that transfers received and accepted to date represent 85½ per cent. of the total issued capital of the above companies.

London and Colonial Investment Corporation.—The board have declared an interim dividend of 2½ per cent. on the Deferred stock of the Corporation in respect of the year ending September 30, 1935. A similar payment was declared a year ago.

Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.—The directors have declared an interim dividend for the half year ending June 30, 1935, of £4 10/- per cent.—viz., Guaranteed interest, £1 15/-; stockholders' revenue account, £2 15/-. This is the same rate as the corresponding period of last year.

Marine Insurance.—Dividend of £6 per share, less tax. £457,954 forward.

Nuwara Eliya Tea.—Profit for 1934, after depreciation, £65,975, against £71,010 in 1933 Final dividend of 12 per cent., making 18 per cent. To reserve; £6,000; tax reserve, £9,500. Forward, £12,070.

Siamese Tin Syndicate.—Interim of 10 per cent., less tax. To date 30 per cent. has been paid in respect of last year. (Total for 1933, 55 per cent.)

Van Den Berghs Fabrieken.—The Preferred Ordinary dividend is again 15 per cent., while the distribution on the "A" Ordinaries is raised from 7 per cent. to 7½ per cent. The allocation to contingencies fund is maintained at fr.100,000, and the carry forward raised from fr.158,187 to fr.172,779. The directors report a recent improvement in the domestic position, although export turnover was again reduced.

William Longmore and Co.—5 per cent., less tax. (Same.)

West African Diamond Syndicate.—Interim dividend of 2½ per cent., less tax, for year ended 31st March, 1935. (Same.)

Waimsleys (Bury).—Interim dividend of 3½ per cent. (actual), less tax, on the Ordinary shares. (Last year 3 per cent.).

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

"Gold Fields" Board

The Consolidated Gold Fields of South Africa, Ltd., and New Consolidated Gold Fields, Ltd., announce that Mr. J. H. C. E. Howeson has resigned his position as a director of both companies. Mr. Howeson is a director of many mining and mining-finance companies. He is Chairman of the Anglo-Oriental Mining Corporation, the London Tin Corporation, and Konongo Gold Mines, Ltd. He is also a member of the Council and Executive Committee of the Tin Producers' Association (Inc.).

New Chairman of Hamburg-Amerika Line

Dr. Walter Hoffmann has been appointed Chairman of the board of directors of the Hamburg-Amerika Line, in succession to Herr Oboussier, who resigned on November 14. Hoffman was Imperial naval officer till the end of the war. He is 37 years of age, and joined the board of the Hamburg-Amerika Line in October last year.

NEW IRISH COMPANIES

INCOME TAX RELIEF

The Minister of Finance has now issued his certificate to Ever Ready (Ltd.), Ireland, to the effect that the company's issue of 20,000 6 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each made on the 14th February comes within the tax relief provisions of Section 7 of the Finance Act, 1932. The Minister's certificate, however, does not apply to the 80,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each, which were issued at the same time.

Eleven new flotations by the following ten companies have been made since the Finance Act, 1932, was passed, all of which come within the provisions of Section 7 of the Act.

LIVERPOOL. — WHEAT — The wheat futures Market will remain open until 5 o'clock from Monday, 15th, to Friday, 26th April, both days inclusive (Saturdays and holidays excepted), owing to summer-time commencing in this country on Sunday, 14th April, and not until Sunday, 28th April, in America. The reduction in overseas markets —especially in the Argentine—caused forward deliveries of wheat here to show a liberal decline at the outset, further gave way with moderate fluctuations until a considerable loss had been registered, then prices recovered on reports of unfavourable weather in America, and improved demand for actual wheat final rates marking only a moderate depreciation on the day C.i.f. parcels Manitoba No. 4 Manitoba early May sold at 29/3, Rosario Santa Fe (63½lb.) afloat 24/3, August 24/10½, September 25/1½ per quarter. C.i.f. parcels River Plate maize 1½d. to 3d. lower, July selling at 15/6 per quarter. Wheat on spot dull and easier. MAIZE spot parcels scarce at 4/10½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR steady at Thursday's advance; graded wheat futures opened 3d. to 4d. per cental lower, further gave way with moderate variations, until 1d. to 1½d. under Thursday's close, had been accepted, then recovered, the market finishing steady and only ¼d. to ½d. lower on the day. Sales—250 loads.

Bombay April £11 17/6, May £11 15/-; Calcutta April-May £11 15/- per ton c.i.f.

OILCAKES—Linseed Cakes—The markets have been more active than of late, with a greater volume of business passing, while values have steadily improved, and there is every indication of even higher rates being established in the near future, for the reason that stocks are exceptionally light, and both manufacturers and shippers continue to offer sparingly, more especially for autumn and winter delivery, in which position only a comparatively limited quantity has been available. London made sell rather more freely at £7 12/6 to £7 17/6, with foreign descriptions in good demand at £7 15/- for 10 per cent. fine quality Brazilians, £7 10/- for Grecians, and £7 5/- for the better brands of India. Cotton Cakes—A large quantity of Egyptians have changed hands at £3 12/6 to £3 13/9 ex ship market terms duty paid, and these are free buyers at this figure not only for afloat parcels, but also for monthly shipments through to August next. English makes, in the meantime, are held at the extreme price of £4 10/- to £4 12/6. Groundnut Cakes—The most popular brands of light-coloured expeller Bombays may still be bought at £6 2/6 to £6 5/- ex store, but for shipment values have been forced up fully 5/- per ton, yesterday's nearest value being £5 15/- to £5 17/6 ex ship terms. OFFALS—English weatings make 6/6 to 5/- per ton more money at £5 7/6 to £5 10/-, with bran unchanged at £5 5/- for ordinary and £5 15/- for broad. Fine white Italian middlings offer cheaply at £5 10/-, ex warehouse, Plate pollards at £5 and Plate bran at £4 17/6, with a greatly improved demand. JAPANESE PEAS on the spot unaltered at £12 10/-, ex-store. April shipments quoted £10 15/- to £11 5/- per ton, c.i.f. RICE BRAN firmer, and 80/- per ton wanted for Burmah, April-June shipments, ex-ship terms. OIL CAKES—Imported descriptions for forward arrival still firmly held, but business rather slow. American linseed £6 asked, and River Plate linseed £6 15/-, both c.i.f.; April-May shipments Indian expeller linseed, April-June, continue at £6 12/6, c.i.f. PALM KERNELS steadier; sellers of April-May and May-June shipments £9 11/3, and buyers 2/6 per ton less, later 1/3 easier TALLOW quite steady; South American quoted 26/- to 27/- for beefs, and Australian good colour, mixed, 26/6 to 27/6, c.i.f., March forward shipments. Business reported in South American beefs, April-May shipments, 26/3 per cwt., c.i.f. to New York.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW.—Hay supplies under average, but with only a moderate attendance of buyers sales proved slow for anything outside choice quality, which just maintained late rates. Strong old meadow came in for fair support for local dairy yards, but softer arrivals brought sales into a late hour, when values were— Choice first crop 4/3 to 4/6 per cwt., second and third 3/9 to 4/-, best old meadow 3/- to 3/3, extra 3/6, and softer 2/- to 2/9. Straw supplies fair, with demand just equal to a clearance, without any material change in values at—Wheaten 1/6 per cwt., oaten 1/6 to 1/9, and choice loose 2/-. There will be no market held on Friday next.
